Thousands pledge loyalty to King Fahd

RIYADH, June 15 (Agencies) — Thousands of people Tuesday, for the second day running, continued flocking to the Palace of Justice here to offer condolences to King Fahd and other Saudi Arabian Royal family members on the passing away of King Khaled, and to pledge their loyalty to the new monarch and his heir-apparent.

The King and Crown Prince Abdullah accompanied by other Saudi Arabian leaders, had arrived at the Justice Palace early in the day for the purpose.

The first callers were a number of high-ranking military officers led by Gen. Muhammad Saleh Al-Hammad, the army chief of staff, and Gen. Muhammad Abdullah Al-Omar, head of the National Guard's military branch, as well as Gen. Abdullah Al-Sheikh, director of public security.

The King spent a few hours receiving pledges of loyalty, after which Prince Salman bin Abdulaziz, the governor of Riyadh, promised those who could not do so Tuesday for lack of time would have another opportunity Wednesday.

King Fahd Tuesday also received beads of Arab, Islamic and foreign delegations which arrived here to offer condolences on the death of his brother King Khaled.

Among the first to be received were Prince Bernard, husband of Queen Beatrix of Netherlands and the Bangladesh martial law administrator Lt.-Gen. Hussein Muhammad Ershad.

The Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Philip, and the head of a PLO delegation Abu Mazin, also paid their respects. Meanwhile, leaders who arrived here Tuesday for the same purpose included the Bahraini Crown Prince and Defense Minister Sheikh Hamad bin Issa Al-Khalifa, and the United Arab Emirates heir-apparent Sheikh Khalifa bin Zaid Al-Nahayan, who is also the commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

The King received Sheikh Saad Al-Abdullah Al-Sabah, Kuwait's heir-apparent-cum-prime minister; King Ahmad Shah of Malaysia; Morocco's Crown Prince Muhammad VI; and the Senegalese delegation led by Foreign Minister Mustapha Cisse; the Gambian delegation led by Foreign Minister Lamin Gaba; and Muhammad Hanifa, the Sri Lankan communications and Islamic affairs minister.

He then received Indian Vice-President Hidayatullah; Pakistani President Muhammad Zia-ul-Haq; Guinean Premier Lansana Beavogui; the Senegalese delegation led by Foreign Minister Mustapha Cisse; the Gambian delegation led by Foreign Minister Lamin Gaba; and Muhammad Hanifa, the Sri Lankan communications and Islamic affairs minister.

Later in the day, the King received Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ulusu and Qatar's Agriculture Minister Sheikh Faisal Al-Thani. He also received a delegation of the South Arabian League led by Sheikh Abdullah Al-Hibshi, the league's secretary general.

In the afternoon, King Fahd received the ambassadors of Austria and Canada and the charges d'affaires of Ethiopia and Nigeria as well as a South Yemeni delegation led by Foreign Minister Saleh Muhammad.

The King also received the Spanish King Juan Carlos, the Japanese delegation led by ex-premier Kakuda, the U.S. Vice-President George Bush, French Foreign Minister Claude Chirsson and the Italian delegation led by speaker of the senate.

Meanwhile, the PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat Tuesday described the late King Khaled as a soldier in the battle for the recovery of Palestine. In a cable of condolences to King Fahd, he said that the demise of King Khaled was a tremendous loss and that he shared the sentiments of the bereaved Saudi family and people and the Arab and Islamic world at large. Addressing himself to the new King, he said "You were following with him with all your attention, energies and potentialities the violence and ferocity of the Zionist assault on Lebanese territory. The late King Khaled and you shared our battle. You were all the time beside him, minute by minute, hour by hour and day by day amid these hard confrontations and the big ordeal.

The pain was too strong for the heart of this genuine Arab and Muslim King; so he fell in the battle as a Palestinian hero and martyr, an Arab hero and martyr and a Muslim hero and martyr. He always believed that the Jihad (holy struggle) for the liberation of Al-Quds (Jerusalem) and Al-Aqsa Mosque should continue."

15,000 Argentines surrender Britain retakes Falklands

LONDON, June 15 (R) — Argentine troops on the Falkland Islands laid down their arms and surrendered in their thousands Tuesday as Britain sought guarantees that the ceasefire would bring an end to hostilities.

Terms for the surrender were signed at nine o'clock Monday night (0100 GMT) after a 10-week military campaign that cost the lives of nearly 1,000 Argentine and British forces. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's office announced the surrender after she was informed when she woke up Tuesday morning.

Government sources told the Press Association, Britain's national news agency, that 14,800 Argentines had been taken prisoner, 11,000 of them in the besieged capital Port Stanley. As the Argentine forces gave themselves up, Britain tried to get a message to the ruling military junta in Buenos Aires through Switzerland, and a Thatcher aide explained: "We are seeking a complete cessation of hostilities."

The aide said Britain wanted to be sure the end of fighting on the islands would be accompanied by a cessation of hostilities from the Argentine mainland 400 miles away. Raids by Argentine air force fighters and bombers based on the mainland inflicted most damage on the British task force sent to regain the Falklands from Argentine control.

Six British warships and a merchant supply vessel laden with vital weapons were lost in the fighting. The threat from the mainland was discussed when Mrs. Thatcher conferred with her war cabinet then, her full cabinet Tuesday.

Britain channeled its approach to the junta through Switzerland as the Swiss embassy in Buenos Aires has been looking after British interests since Mrs. Thatcher broke diplomatic relations with Argentina early in the crisis. News of the surrender came in a signal flashed to London from Maj. Gen. Jeremy Moore, commander of Britain's land forces on the Falklands, saying all Argentine forces on the islands had surrendered to him "with their weapons."

The British flag was hoisted over government house, the symbol of 149 years of British rule on the island colony, according to pooled despatches from correspondents accompanying the British troops into Port Stanley.

The Union Jack was also raised over the racecourse by a sergeant major of the paratroopers involved in the assault. Watching the flag unfurl was Lt. Col. David Chandler, who parachuted on to the islands to take command of the paratroopers after their colonel, Herbert "H" Jones, was killed. "It has been the most amazing two weeks of my life," he told David Norris, a correspondent of The Daily Mail. "My feeling now is one of relief — a feeling that at the end of the day, the British can't be kicked around."

Queen Elizabeth, informed of the Argentine surrender at Windsor Castle outside London, was delighted and relieved at the news, her press secretary Michael Shea said. "She is very pleased and proud of the court."

Victory poses problems

LONDON, June 15 (R) — Britain, having apparently won the conflict with Argentina for control of the Falkland Islands, now faces the knotty problem of what to do with them.

Before the Argentine takeover April 2, the Falklands were a distant, unsung colony about which the British public knew virtually nothing and the government cared little. British governments had seemed willing in principle to turn the islands over to Argentina but were hauled by the 1,800 islanders, who insisted they wanted to remain British.

Britons are now aware that over 300 of their servicemen have died to regain the islands, and Cecil Parkinson, chairman of the ruling Conservative Party, said last week: "If they're worth dying for, they're worth keeping."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher now says she sees no sovereignty role for Argentina in the Falklands. But a wide spectrum of political opinion is aware of the long-term need for the Falklands to live at peace with its neighbor.

Britain's Economist magazine said this week: "Neither the Falklanders nor the Britons protecting them will ever be fully safe until the islands have found a niche in the South Atlantic accepted by the international community." Government sources said Tuesday it was unlikely the full regalia of British rule would return to the Falklands once the islands have been fully repossessed.

They said that to reintroduce all the trappings of colonial office might be offensive to Latin America. The governor, Rex Hunt, has said publicly that he has packed his bags and is ready to go back to Port Stanley as soon as Mrs. Thatcher gives the green light.

The government has not yet confirmed that Hunt will be returning to the Falklands. If he does, he might well leave unpacked his plumed hat and sword, traditional symbol of colonial rule.

It is thought that he will probably go back for a short time to boost islanders' confidence and then be quietly recalled. Political sources said the government would wish to have an inconspicuous British presence on the islands, so that they could fit more easily into a regional context.

One option being canvassed for the Falklands is that of an "Association" with Britain. Several constitutional models for this already exist in the Caribbean. St. Kitts and Nevis, a former British Caribbean colony, has had the status of an associate state since 1967 and enjoys full internal self-government while Britain remains responsible for defense and foreign affairs.

Government sources indicated that in the short-term, the emphasis would almost certainly be on establishing the civil administration, repairing war damage and giving the 1,800 islanders time to think about their future.

Debate on the islands' future has hardly begun, so intent has Britain been on the progress of the fighting. But the British press has given an airing to the problems Britain could face if it adopts what is known as a "fortress Falklands" strategy.

Soviet ships for M.E. likely

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — The Soviet Union is expected to reinforce its Mediterranean fleet within the next few days to underscore its warning to Israel to back off in Lebanon, United States intelligence sources said Tuesday.

These sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said there are indications the Soviet Navy probably will send about five warships from the Black Sea into the Mediterranean.

"It looks like it won't be a great number," said one specialist who indicated the anticipated move is viewed as a demonstration of Soviet support for the Arab cause rather than a serious military threat.

At a Pentagon briefing, Defense Department spokesman Henry Catto said he had "indications of a movement of Soviet ships into the Mediterranean."

East of Beirut Airport Israelis face Syrian fire

TEL AVIV, June 15 (AP) — Syrian forces and Palestinian commandos bombed Israeli troops with tank fire east of Beirut International Airport Tuesday, the military command said.

Israeli troops returned the fire, a communiqué said. It said the incident occurred about 6 p.m. (1600 GMT). No further details were given.

It was the first report of Syrian involvement in fighting since Friday, the sixth day of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon, when Damascus and Tel Aviv agreed on a ceasefire.

Meanwhile, diehard commandos near Sidon, south of Beirut, continued to resist Israeli attempts to dislodge them, military sources said.

Earlier, it was reported tension was building up and in both Lebanon and Israel, due to fresh Israeli attempts to take strategic points around Beirut and over a perception that Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government was overstepping its own proclaimed goals in Lebanon.

As Begin left for the United States, he was leaving behind growing concern over casualties and charges of Israeli over-aggressiveness.

A column of 338 tanks and armored vehicles rolled early Tuesday into the heights southeast of Beirut, around Baabda, Hadeth and Ain Saade, the daily Al Nahar newspaper reported. Israeli forces also spread out into sections of the Bekaa Valley evacuated by the Syrians, and tightened their control over points of the Beirut-Damascus Highway. Syrians left them the area around Jamhour and Sebansy, pulling eastward into heights around the Bekaa.

The Israelis also took a bridge on the road to Aramoun and occupied Monteverdi, which is on a road linking the hills west of Beirut. This meant that Israelis now not only surround west Beirut and its Palestinian population, but also can head eastward into will, therefore, carry out their duty to defend the legitimate authority of the Lebanese government, as well as Lebanese territory and the Lebanese and Palestinian people, with all their strength."

Earlier Monday, a high-ranking military delegation from the Soviet Union, Syria's chief arms supplier, has arrived in Damascus, the official Syrian news agency Sana said. Sana said the delegation, headed by the deputy commander of the Soviet air force, Maj. Gen. Yarusov, arrived Sunday night and went straight into talks with Syria's Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Mustafa Tlas. The Soviet delegation held further talks Monday with senior Syrian officers, the agency said.

the Sannine Mountains.

In Israel itself, meanwhile, opposition parties began calling for the government not to venture any further.

"The government must adhere scrupulously to the objectives it fixed officially," said a Labor Party communiqué that recalled Israel's initial stated goal of pushing the Palestinian commandos out of range of northern Israel.

Labor Party leader Shimon Peres added, after a meeting with Begin, that "the opposition's efforts to favor a national union at a time when our soldiers are fighting on the front are not necessarily synonymous with a political consensus over the goals of this operation."

The Haaretz newspaper added that "Israel must limit itself to the creation of a buffer zone of 40 kms, as it declared at the outset, and not nourish the ambition of becoming the authors of peace in the east."

Al Hanishmar, a newspaper close to Israel's left wing, went even further, denouncing the "tissue of lies that has surrounded the operation since it began."

"From the start, the left knew where the government's adventurists were leading us," it said. "Now that the cannons are gradually quieting, the goal of the forces of the country must be to make the government fall as quickly as possible."

The U.S. special envoy Philip Habib Tuesday met Lebanese Prime Minister Shafiq Wazzan in Beirut, officials said.

In another development, Palestine Liberation Organization announced that its chairman, Yasser Arafat, and his entire PLO leadership except Arafat's chief foreign policy adviser Farouk Kaddoumi were in west Beirut, directing the PLO's "stubborn resistance."

Nationalist Muslim newspapers published photographs of Arafat taken Monday in a secret PLO command post in West Beirut.

To withdraw troops Damascus rejects ultimatum

DAMASCUS, June 15 (Agencies) — Syria Tuesday rejected an Israeli army order to pull out the Arab Deterrent Force (ADF), composed mainly of Syrian troops, it was officially announced here.

A Syrian government statement said the commander of the Syrian troops in Lebanon, Col. Sami Kharib, informed the Syrian authorities that the "ultimatum" was delivered to him through the Lebanese Army. It came from "the Israeli commander and his assistant in the Baabda area," it said.

"We have answered — that the Syrian troops present in Beirut — are there by virtue of an Arab decision and at the request of the legitimate Lebanese authorities. These forces will, therefore, carry out their duty to defend the legitimate authority of the Lebanese government, as well as Lebanese territory and the Lebanese and Palestinian people, with all their strength."

Earlier Monday, a high-ranking military delegation from the Soviet Union, Syria's chief arms supplier, has arrived in Damascus, the official Syrian news agency Sana said. Sana said the delegation, headed by the deputy commander of the Soviet air force, Maj. Gen. Yarusov, arrived Sunday night and went straight into talks with Syria's Defense Minister Maj. Gen. Mustafa Tlas. The Soviet delegation held further talks Monday with senior Syrian officers, the agency said.

Farsi to open Pakistani artist's exhibit

By Suresh Shah
Arab News Staff

JEDDAH, June 15 — Tanveer Shams, not a new name to art lovers in Jeddah, is holding his 14th one-man exhibition of paintings at Redec Plaza Gallery this week. Jeddah Mayor Muhammad Saeed Farsi will inaugurate the exhibition Thursday evening while show opens to the public Friday. The event lasts a week.

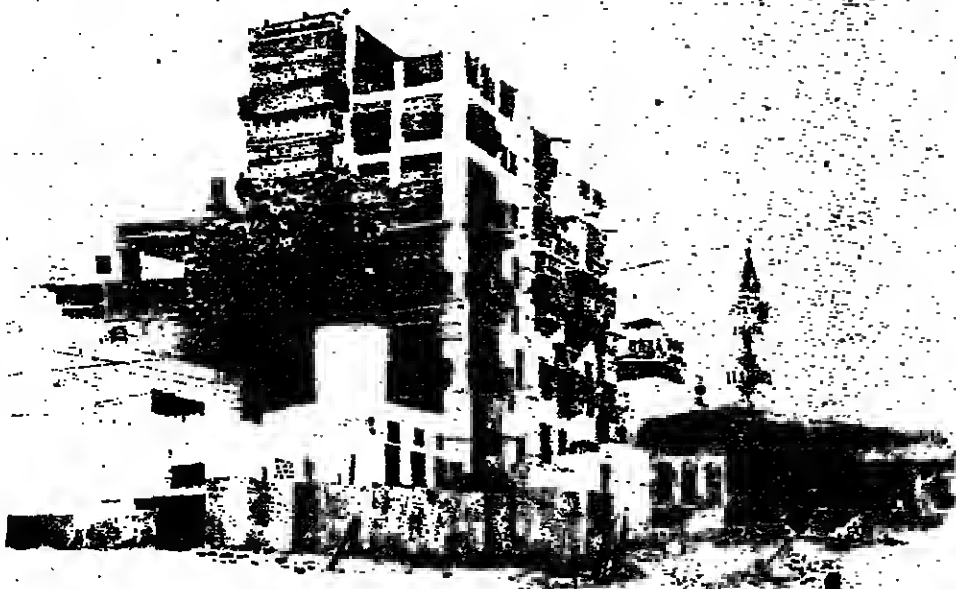

The theme of the 36 paintings is the combination of Saudi Arabian and Pakistani subjects covering cultural and historical aspects of both countries. The execution of historical aspects, through a modern realistic technique gets an effect of abstract motifs; and the combination of those motifs with a realistic touch gives a pleasing outcome.

Only water colors and acrylic are used in his paintings. "Handling a theme in water colors is my own style and the balanced distribution of white space in the subject creates a beautiful effect," Tanveer Shams tells Arab News. Out of the 36 paintings, 30 demonstrate the Saudi environment beautifully depicting historical landmarks in Jeddah: the old Turkish quarters, the Arabian architecture: the combination of old city scenes of Abha, Hail and Najran; the Hara Mosque of Taif; falconry with background of old Riyadh; Souk Al-Alawi, dry docks and Mahmil in Buraidah; boats, the leaning tower of Pasha mosque and the coffee pot.

The balance of six Pakistani paintings covers Murce in winter, a Karachi bazaar, Qissa Khwani bazaar of Peshawar, Anarkali bazaar of Lahore, open market of Quetta and Raja bazaar of Rawalpindi. The Anarkali bazaar in Lahore with famous Shahi mosque in the background and the movement of people make it so natural that the viewer feels he is part of it.

Shams' works, widely viewed in numerous exhibitions, have been acclaimed and admired for their beauty, poise and sincere depth. Simple, almost forgotten subjects tend to acquire sudden grace and recognition which can only be described as "envious." Shams, born in 1944, has been painting for more than 18 years. He has resided in Jeddah for 12 years. He came here in 1968 and joined advertising agency as an art director. In 1971, he was employed by the Saudi Arabian Airlines as a production specialist, responsible for the design and layout of its public relations publications, a position he held until 1979. He was commissioned by Saudia between July-December 1980, for designing its calendar.

He has participated in several exhibitions between 1963 and 1967. Since then he displayed his paintings in nine exhibitions in Pakistan and an equal number in Jeddah.

(Wirephoto)
OLD JEDDAH: As a resident of Jeddah for more than a decade, Tanveer Shams skillfully captures the grandeur of the old city's buildings. The above painting is one of his works, where the historical aspects smoothly mingle with the modern methods of artistry adding a realistic touch.

Khaled is martyr of Palestine - - Yamani

RIYADH, June 15 (SPA) — Information Minister Dr. Muhammad Abdo Yamani said Tuesday, eulogizing the late King Khaled, that the monarch had died as a martyr of the Palestine cause with an unrealized wish to see Holy Jerusalem liberated.

Writing an article in Okaz under the heading "the martyr of the tragedy," Yamani highlighted the late king's stand toward the recent Arab crisis dealing with justice. King Khaled was deeply grieved following up closely the massacres committed by the Zionist enemy in Lebanon with the aim of liquidating the Palestine cause, he said. "The monarch was even more depressed by the deviation of the Islamic nation from its Islamic tradition and by inter-Arab and inter-Islamic differences," he added.

This led to an increasing psychological strain on the king who fully shared his nation's causes, the minister said.

Yamani said an even more pressing psychological grief gripped the late king with news about the daily shedding of Lebanese and Palestinian blood by the Zionists. "He could not withstand the mingling of the blood of the innocent and Palestinian freedom fighters with the continuation of Arab recriminations," he added.

"The king was unable to withstand more pain and accordingly died as a martyr of the Palestine cause, his wish to see Holy Jerusalem liberated from the tyrants unfulfilled," the eulogy went on.

Yamani wrote that the late leader's grief increased as he noticed that estrangement rather than rapprochement was prevailing. In his capacity as the current chairman of the Islamic conference, the king was closely following up efforts made by the Islamic mediation committee to help put an end to the Iraqi-Iranian war.

King Khaled further believed that the "fierce Zionist onslaught which coincided with the committee meetings was in itself bound to stop the fighting between two Islamic states, and lead Iraq and Iran to join hands immediately against the mutual enemy which had desecrated Islamic shrines...." He added.

Nigeria denies Saudi aid offer

LAGOS, June 15 (R) — Nigerian Finance Minister Victor Masi denied reports that Saudi Arabia has offered to lend Nigeria $1 billion to help it overcome an economic crisis.

He told a press conference "Nigeria has not been offered a $1 billion loan from Saudi Arabia. We have not borrowed anything from Saudi Arabia." Such an offer has been widely reported but never officially confirmed in Lagos. The reports said the offer was made to help Nigeria defend the $34 a barrel Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) benchmark oil price when it was under buyers' pressure to cut its price.

Saudi Petroleum and Minerals Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani said in April that a financial aid package for Nigeria was discussed when Nigeria's Presidential Energy Adviser Yashin Dikko visited Saudi Arabia. An official source said after the visit that Dikko had been seeking a $1 billion loan and had been happy with the results of his visit. He said officials were under strict orders not to discuss the subject.

Win SR50m contract

U.P. Bridge, Al-Suwaiket form joint venture

By a Staff Writer

JEDDAH, June 15 — An Indian government corporation has gone into joint venture with a local company to enter the bridge and flyover construction industry in the Kingdom.

Sayed Muhammad Ammar Rizvi, Uttar Pradesh State minister for public works and protocol, signed the joint venture agreement in Alkhobar during the weekend. Rizvi, who arrived here Monday, told Arab News that U.P. Bridge Corporation joined the local Al-Suwaiket group of companies based in Alkhobar to carry out works in the Kingdom. The state minister is leading a delegation representing U.P. Bridge and the U.P. State Construction Corporations.

Rizvi said the joint venture already won its first contract, worth SR50 million, for constructing the Hail-Alula bridge for the proposed Madinah-Hail Road. Work on the road is expected to start within a few months, he added.

"This is the beginning of our activities in the Kingdom and soon we will be able to get more contracts," Rizvi says. Negotiations are underway for three other projects. The new company plans to open an office in Jeddah shortly, he adds.

He says the corporation has been in the bridge construction business for the past 120 years. It has to its credit many prestigious projects in some major Indian states as well as Middle Eastern countries. U.P. Bridge has opened an office in Bahrain to look after the work carried out in Gulf countries.

In Iraq alone the total value of projects undertaken by the corporation has exceeded SR400 million margin. It is involved in nine major projects, of which two have been completed before schedule.

The other seven are at various stages of construction. Meanwhile, negotiations for SR80 million contracts are in progress for a Kuwaiti project.

Rizvi said, before coming to the Kingdom, he had visited Sharjah, UAE, to explore possibilities for a joint venture. He had a useful meeting with the ruler of Sharjah and some consultants.

Project commissioned

DAMMAM, June 15 (SPA) — The industrial institute here, an affiliate of the General Organization of Technical Education and Vocational Training, has awarded a SR800,000 contract for the supply and installation of two water purification units at its premises. The contract was won by a national company and work will begin within two months. Abdul Rahman Al-Libaikhan, the institute director, has said.

Stop genocide, Israelis told

French official to meet Sarkis

PARIS, June 15 (AP) — The French government Monday urged Israel to immediately halt its bombing and combat actions in Lebanon and said it was sending Francis Guitman, secretary general of the External Relations Ministry, to meet with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis.

It was the strongest French reaction since Israeli troops invaded Lebanon and was issued on the same day that Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir arrived in Paris for a two-day visit.

In a communique released from the presidential Elysee Palace, the French government reaffirmed its offer to listen to any appeal from the legitimate government in Beirut. Although French President Francois Mitterrand last week "condemned without reservation Israel's aggression," the government statement Monday marked the first time France publicly urged Israel to cease combat operations.

"Despite two resolutions by the U.N. Security Council, the fighting has continued to stain Lebanon with blood and cause thousands of civilian victims," the government communique said. "France solemnly asks Israel to immediately put an end to the bombings and fighting. We ask other nations and organizations that share our concern for Lebanese and Palestinian civilians to join their efforts with ours," the statement added.

The communique also said the government was working with French humanitarian organizations to send urgent aid to citizens and refugees in Lebanon.

The government communique was issued after a 90-minute meeting between Mitterrand and Algerian Ambassador to France Muhammad Shanoun. Shanoun said he told Mitterrand the Arab world expected France and other European countries to call for the immediate withdrawal of Israeli forces in Lebanon.

The Algerian ambassador also said he told the French president that Arab states "could not remain with their arms crossed while their brothers were being massacred."

Meanwhile, the authorities said 1,200 persons, mainly French nationals, were evacuated Monday from the Lebanese port of Jounieh north of Beirut. The evacuees included Italian, West German and Canadian nationals. The Italian navy ship Caorle Monday took on some 500 stranded travellers and foreigners from Jounieh. In London, the 2,500 Britons living in Beirut were warned Monday night by their government to move out of the western sector of the city.

In Cairo, the weekly Al-Akram Monday called on Egyptians to boycott Israel for what it termed the "Israeli genocide against all Arabs." Egypt will also send medical aid to Lebanon through the international Red Cross this week, the official Middle East News Agency said.

In London the Palestine Liberation Organization representative accused the U.S. Monday of approving Israel's "systematic genocide" in Lebanon. "It is beyond any shadow of a doubt that the Israelis could have never undertaken such a barbarous process of systematic genocide without the full knowledge and approval of the United States government," said PLO representative Nabil Ramlawi. He told a news conference that U.S. President Ronald Reagan "cannot simply wash his hands of the bloodshed in Lebanon by 'offering' $25 million to the victims of the massacre."

In Washington, Pakistani Foreign Minister Yaqub Khan told Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Monday that Israel's invasion will have "very grave consequences throughout the Middle East. After a 90-minute meeting with Haig, Yaqub Khan told reporters that far from solving problems, the Israeli action "will complicate them." Yaqub Khan said he also briefed Haig on efforts to achieve peace in Afghanistan, which include indirect talks next week in Geneva involving Pakistani, Iranian and Afghan officials.

Haig and visiting Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said after nearly three hours of talks that Israel's invasion of Lebanon had set back the Camp David peace process.

In Khartoum, some 600 Muslim university students Monday shouted slogans against the United States and the Israeli invasion. The demonstration was organized jointly by the student unions of Khartoum University, Omdurman Islamic University, and the Khartoum branch of Cairo University. All three unions are dominated by Muslim Brotherhood organizations.

In Peking, about 250 foreign students protested Tuesday outside the U.S. Embassy against the Israeli invasion and marched through a diplomatic area of Peking to voice support for the Palestinian cause. The students, mainly from the Middle East and Africa, but including some West Europeans and Americans, shouted slogans and delivered a message supporting Palestinian rights to embassy officials.

A minor scuffle broke out when a Palestinian student tried to get past Chinese soldiers guarding the embassy but was restrained by fellow demonstrators. The students, from Peking Languages Institute, Peking University and other colleges, later delivered similar messages to the Lebanese Embassy and the missions of the United Nations and the PLO.

In New Delhi, 70 of the 90 Palestinian students who seized the Arab Cultural Center two days ago were flown to Damascus enroute to Lebanon by the Syrian government airline Monday. The youths captured the center, run by the League of Arab Nations, to protest what they called "Arab silence" over the Israeli invasion.

The Danish government Tuesday announced it is sending $125,000 to boost the Red Cross relief work for victims of Israel's invasion.

Cyprus seeks U.S. help on Turkish pullout

LOS ANGELES, June 15 (R) — President Spyros Kyprianou of Cyprus called on the United States to press for the withdrawal of Turkish forces from the divided island.

Addressing a press conference in Los Angeles, Kyprianou said: "Cyprus is a very dangerous and potentially explosive problem. What makes it so is the continued presence of the Turkish occupation troops. 'I think the United States has the right to demand the withdrawal of Turkish troops from Cyprus.' Turkish forces have occupied the northern sector of the island since July 1974.

Kyprianou said Cyprus would also welcome the reimposition of an arms embargo on Turkey lifted by the U.S. Congress. Asked if his government would accept Palestinians following the Israeli invasion of Lebanon, he said Cyprus would accept the wounded and provide assistance for refugees.

London court halts Iranian's deportation

LONDON, June 15 (AP) — A 28-year-old Iranian who admitted possessing heroin and other drugs was spared from deportation Monday after his attorney argued he would face almost certain death in Iran.

Newcastle Crown Court Judge Myrella Cohen did not issue deportation order and deferred sentencing Jholam Ramazan of south Tyneside for six months. "Any return to Iran could be fatal for Ramazan," said defense attorney Patrick Cosgrove. "His whole family has been involved in a political movement opposed to the regime of the ayatollahs and many thousands with these sympathies have already met their deaths."

Ethiopia, Sudan ponder expulsion of rebels

ADDIS ABABA, June 15 (AFP) — The Ethiopia-Sudan Defense and Security Committee is holding a four-day meeting apparently aimed at clearing the final obstacles to implementation of last month's agreement in Khartoum to expel dissidents and secessionist elements opposed to either government.

The meeting began Monday shortly after the arrival of a seven-man Sudanese delegation headed by Hasib Osman, Khartoum's foreign affairs permanent secretary. The defense and security committee was to revive its activities following the visit to the Sudanese capital at the end of last month of a top-level Ethiopian government delegation led by Berhanu Bayih, the ruling military council's chief for foreign affairs.

At that time, the two countries agreed both to expel hostile elements opposed to either government and to close down the offices of dissident or secessionist movements in either country. "All groups or individuals who in any way work to the detriment of the other neighboring country will be expelled in order to enable the two governments achieve constructive collaboration beneficial to their peoples", a joint communique at the end of the Khartoum meeting said.

It added that the accord aimed at eliminating all obstacles to the relations between the two countries, somewhat soured after Ethiopia moved closer to Libya, with whom Khartoum has had relations, in August last year.

In recent years, ties between Ethiopia and Sudan have ebbed moving from bad to worse in 1977 when President Jafar Numeiry pledged open support for Eritrean rebels fighting a war of secession from Ethiopia. Then a clear thaw emerged with an official visit to Khartoum by Ethiopian leader

Mengistu Haile Mariam in 1980 and a return visit to Addis Ababa by Numeiry early the following year.

A number of accords were signed during that period, including one for a joint monitoring of their common border. But it was less successful than Ethiopia had hoped for as the Eritrean war is still not over. Some observers suggest that Ethiopia's new alliance with Libya and South Yemen, sealed in a tripartite agreement of friendship and cooperation in Aden last year, stemmed from Khartoum's lack of political will to carry out the terms of accords previously concluded.

Bullets hit car of Khomeini's son

LONDON, June 15 (R) — The car of Ayatollah Khomeini's son Ahmad was hit in a grenade and machinegun attack Tuesday, the Tehran evening newspaper Ettela'at reported.

The newspaper said guerrillas of the Mujahadeen ambushed the car on a central Tehran avenue. Ahmad Khomeini, a senior clergyman, was not in the car when it was attacked.

A spokesman for Ayatollah Khomeini's office said the armor-plated car had been hit by a few bullets. The driver was unhurt. Tuesday's attack was the latest in a series of assaults on government targets by Mujahadeen opposed to the regime of Ayatollah Khomeini.

Hojatoleslam Ahmad is the eldest son of Khomeini. Although he has no official post, he acts as a link between the government and his father.

Chinese score in life science research

By Geng Tao

PEKING (Depthnews) — After 13 years of work, Chinese researchers achieved what they claimed to be the first successful synthesis of a nucleic acid, a substance essential to the process of heredity.

This work is considered another major achievement by China in the field of life science following the first total synthesis of a kind of protein — bovine insulin — in 1965.

Existing in all organisms, nucleic acids take part in the transmission of the genetic code, a vital mechanism of biological inheritance. Their main function is to direct the synthesis of protein, the basic component of all living cells.

The nucleic acid synthesized by Chinese scientists is yeast alanine transfer ribonucleic acid (t-RNA) which binds with alanine, an amino acid — the building block of protein — and transports it to the protein synthesizing site of the cell. Once there, the alanine will combine with other amino acids to form a protein. Tests have proven that the synthesized yeast alanine t-RNA is identical in chemical structure with its natural counterpart and thus biologically active.

Synthesis of nucleic acids is extremely difficult because of their complicated chemical structure, according to the scientists who worked on the project. These acids are macromolecular compounds, each containing from dozens to tens of thousands of smaller molecules called nucleotides. The structure of yeast alanine t-RNA, the first of the nucleic acids to have its nucleotide sequence determined, was worked out in 1963 by R.W. Holley, a U.S. scientist who won a

Nobel Prize for his efforts.

Every yeast alanine t-RNA molecule contains a chain of 76 nucleotides, of which there are 11 different kinds — four common and seven rare. Synthesis involves at least five steps: production of the nucleotides, linking about four of these together, joining the small sections into larger ones, creating half molecules by combining the large pieces, and, finally, creating whole yeast alanine t-RNA molecules from these half molecules.

The synthesis research was conducted since 1968 by a group of about 100 scientists from the Institutes of Biochemistry, Cell Biology and Organic Chemistry, Shanghai, the Institute of Biophysics in Beijing, the Biology Department of Peking University and the Shanghai No. 2 Reagent Factory. Wang Dehao, 63, director of the Nucleic

Acid Laboratory at Shanghai's Biochemistry Institute and team leader, says that "research in the synthesis of nucleic acids has a direct bearing on genetic engineering. What we commonly call genes are none other than sections of nucleic acid responsible for different tasks in passing on hereditary characteristics."

The procedure for the synthesis also is important, he says. "By using the method with which we have successfully synthesized the alanine t-RNA, we can synthesize many medicines for curing serious diseases. In addition, by applying it to genetic engineering, we can breed and cultivate new kinds of animals and plants to benefit society," Dr. Wang says.

The scientists already are looking ahead. Wang Yinglai, director of the Biochemistry Institute, says: "Research on the application of this success will be carried out in, for example, making nucleic acid medication against tumors, cancers and viruses. Our aim is to make this result in research serve clinical application."

Chinese scientists, however, point out their achievement is not limited to the synthesis of a nucleic acid. It also provides valuable experience in organizing research programs of such magnitude and aids in training young scientists in nucleic acid experimentation which will be important for future studies in the field.

Doctors plan to starve tumor

LONDON (LPS) — It may be possible to kill tumors simply by cutting off their blood supply. Experiments with mice have shown that cancer cells die within 24 hours of being deprived of blood.

With this in mind, scientists at the Gray Laboratory at Mount Vernon Hospital near London are searching for suitable drugs that could cut off the blood supply to tumors while not attacking the tumors directly.

Dr. Julie Denekamp, head of the project, says research at the laboratory over the past two years has established that cells lining blood vessels leading to a tumor multiply much faster than in normal blood vessels.

This opens up the possibility of putting drugs into the blood stream which will come in and destroy these particular blood vessels around tumors without harming normal vessels. By destroying a single blood vessel in this way up to 10,000 cancer cells would be starved of blood and killed off. The drugs would also seek out and kill off cancer cells which had spread to other parts of the body.

Dr. Denekamp says cancer cells need blood to obtain oxygen, glucose, vitamins and other nutrients. If the way could be found to cut off the blood supply then such a method could be used against all solid tumors.

The search for suitable drugs is being helped by a Cancer Research Campaign laboratory at Nottingham in the English Midlands.

Another Look

Incompetence is path to peace

By Robert Youkum

"How could you halt the arms race all by yourself?" my mother asked on the telephone the other day.

"I didn't say that I could do it all by myself!" I protested. "Gee, Mom, I hope you haven't quoted me as saying that!"

"Well, uh, yes, I have," she said. "I told quite a few people." And that's why I'm forced to use this space to clarify what I really said.

What I really said was that if I were appointed to a position in the Pentagon, and if someone like me were appointed to a similar position in the Soviet Union's defense headquarters, the suicidal arms race in which we are now involved would wind down in fairly short order.

And what difference, you will surely ask, would my presence in the Pentagon make? Just this: My administrative incompetence is so great that even the gigantic machinery of our defense establishment would, with me as one of its parts, quiver and shudder and wheeze and grind to a halt.

So, if some peace group wants to try this original tactic for putting a brake on the arms race, I'm available. But if they slip me into the Pentagon, they will also have to find some way to slide an equally incompetent Russian into the Kremlin's military high command. I have no intention of letting the Soviet continue to arm while I slow down our side.

How about my credentials for the work? Well, I turned down a job with the Kennedy administration in 1960, after working on the election campaign in Washington, only because I knew that my participation would quickly tumble the promising new government.

No matter what job I might take — let's say as an assistant press officer in a tiny and obscure African nation — I would have administrative duties. And my proven incompetence in such matters — my inability to get things done in time, my instinctive inversion of priorities, my talent for muddling subordinates and superiors alike — would work like some sort of tree rot that travels from the twig to the branch to the trunk, and, finally, to the roots.

If some peace-mongering organization likes my idea and wants references, they are available from my family, a news agency, a newspaper, an international organization, and countless committees.

Putting me in the Pentagon, therefore, would ground that department as surely as the filling of a jet fighter's fuel tank with molasses would ground it. Within a short time of my arrival things of this sort would occur:

1. The circulation of memorandums would slow down. They would be piling up on my desk.

2. Memorandums sent out by me, if acted on, would result in unimportant tasks being done instantly and crucial tasks being done anon, if ever.

3. Privates would be promoted to generals, mess sergeants would be moved to hospital operating rooms, and chaplains would become bombardiers. (Because I get so far behind, I usually foul up the few things that I do manage to get done.)

4. If I were even remotely connected to procurement, and especially if I worked with a computer, tanks would arrive without treads or turrets, fighter planes would come with conning towers, and submarines would be fitted with landing gear.

5. Members of congressional armed services committees, who are accustomed to obsequious attention and personal services from the military, would be slighted in the new era of inefficiency. Appropriations would plummet.

Skeptics may scoff at my belief that the build-up of lethal weapons could be arrested by the ineptness of one person, but since nothing else is working, why not try me? Massive incompetence of the sort I have to offer might turn out to be mankind's secret weapon against its own lunacies.

It may even be that on some future October day you will read of the Nobel Peace Prize being awarded jointly to me and Igor Pavlov, or whatever my Russian counterpart is named. In any case, if called to duty I pledge to do my very worst.

A WIFE COMPLAINS

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Wives agree with yesterday's column: in the evening, there should be a period of detensing to prevent undue nervousness and tension that leads to quarrels.

Bnt, listen to Mrs. R. of Dallas: "The wife is often the forgotten member of the partnership. You've often suggested, Dr. Steincrohn, that the husband should have a half-hour of leisure before dinner — feet propped up, reading the paper, and preventing him from getting an ulcer or nervous breakdown."

"I'm sure your advice will help him, but may half-kill his wife! How about me (and so many others like me?) I've been taking care of adorable, screaming children since early in the morning before he left for work. I've settled arguments, tied shoes, and have had dozens of interruptions while doing my job. I've talked only baby talk for 12 or more hours, caught dropping food from the table, yelled at the kids to finish their lunch."

"All while hubby more than likely has had an hour-leisurely lunch at the office. When hubby arrives, I'm ready for some adult talk at dinner. I need someone to take over the kiddies for a little while so I can get a decent dinner prepared before they drive me stark, raving mad!"

"I want to get dinner over fast so I can do the dishes, get the kiddies bathed, stories read and tucked into bed at a reasonable hour. I still have clothes to fold, ironing to do, mending and what-have-you. Hubby, meanwhile, has been relaxing so he can properly digest his food and not acquire that ulcer or breakdown!"

"Believe me, Dr. Steincrohn, the average mother hasn't digested a meal properly in months or years. Why is it so important for men? I've been told many times to relax. To take a vacation from my children."

"It's really a joke. Instead, this is what I hear from my husband when he comes home from work: 'Isn't dinner ready yet? What have you been doing all day, dear? Just sitting around watching TV?'"

MEDICALETTES

(Replies to and from readers):

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Even though I learned I have glaucoma, my spirits were good. My doctor put me on a drug to lower the eye pressure.

After taking it for about a month, I began to become depressed. When I told him about it, he discontinued my medicine and prescribed another kind.

Within days, my depression disappeared. Is it possible, as he says, that the first drug caused my depression? — Mrs. F.

Dear Mrs. F.: There have been some reported cases of severe depression caused by Tirolol maleate. Is that the drug you have been taking?

Although it is widely used and quite effective in lowering intraocular pressure, doctors should be aware (as your own doctor says) that it is a potent drug that may occasionally produce depression. Symptoms usually disappear quickly after it has been discontinued.

For Mr. K.: It's true. Between 1968 and 1976, mortality from coronary heart disease declined in the United States by more than 20 percent.

Why? It's likely (although there may have been other factors) that it has been due to changes in diet, changes in smoking habits and early diagnosis and treatment of high blood pressure.

For Mrs. Q.: Be thankful that your youngster was saved from choking to death on peanuts because your neighbor is a doctor who was happened to be handy when you called for help.

Mothers know that youngsters are forever putting something in their mouths, so they need to anticipate what might happen to their child.

But it isn't always easy. For example: would you suspect the hot dog? Yet, in one report it was responsible for 25 percent of the deaths investigated. Ages varied between just under one year to seven.

Other foods responsible for deaths were nuts and candy. No food threats were pacifiers, rattlers, screws and bolts. Constant awareness appears to be the answer.

For Mrs. P.: Not every patient requires radiation treatments after operation on the ovaries. Whether or not you receive it, or chemotherapy, will depend upon the reason for the operation in the first place.

For Mr. T.: Which is better: to walk fast or jog slowly? I'd say walking is better for you because you are not only over-exercising but also overweight.

Besides, walking one mile at five miles per hour burns up almost as many calories as running one mile at five miles per hour (125-150).

Members detained, questioned

Soviet peace group calls for arms talks

MOSCOW, June 15 (AP) — Four leaders of the Soviet Union's only independent peace movement were detained and interrogated by authorities, a group member said Tuesday. But despite official harassment, the group of 11 Soviet citizens issued a formal statement calling for U.S.-Soviet disarmament talks and asking permission to demonstrate in Moscow June 27.

The detentions appeared designed to discourage the organization, which claims support from 100 persons, said member Genady Krochik. "We are no longer able to meet as a group," said the 33-year-old doctor.

Russian Navy enlarging base

STOCKHOLM, June 15 (R) — The Soviet Navy is enlarging its base at Liepaja in the Latvian Republic as part of a program to strengthen its Baltic fleet, according to Latvian emigres here.

Anis Lejins, a researcher at the Swedish Institute for Foreign Affairs and a Latvian emigre himself, wrote in the institute's journal that the work at Liepaja involved the transfer of the Soviet Union's second largest fishing collective to a new site further along the coast.

The extension of the Liepaja base suggested the navy was increasing the number of vessels in its Baltic fleet and not simply improving inadequate existing facilities, wrote Lejins, who maintains regular contact with sources inside Latvia.

Russian construction workers were being brought into the fiercely nationalistic republic because Latvians, who make up 53 percent of the population, could not be trusted on the project, he said.

Underwater bunkers for nuclear submarines were being built between the Latvian capital of Riga and the River Gauja, "Latvia is becoming nothing but one big military base," Lejins said.

The Soviet Baltic fleet operates out of Riga, Liepaja, the Estonian capital of Tallinn and Baltysk near Kaliningrad. Western military experts believe it consists of 42 major warships, 294 smaller fighting vessels, 60 support craft and 22 submarines including six Golf 2 nuclear subs equipped with 18 SS-N-5 Serb missiles.

Lejins said reports were reaching Stockholm of a nuclear accident involving one of the Golfs during naval maneuvers off the Polish coast last summer. Emigres had heard that some submarine crewmen were being treated for radiation sickness in an isolation wing of Riga military hospital, he added.

tor. "The struggle will continue."

Official Soviet peace committees regularly issue statements favoring nuclear disarmament, but the Kremlin appears reluctant to permit unsupervised groups.

Movement co-founders Sergei Batovrin and Sergei Rozenoer were held under house arrest for 48 hours and then picked up for questioning Monday, their relatives and colleagues said. Krochik said both men were released.

On Monday, a plainclothes policeman threatened two Western reporters when they attempted to enter the building housing the apartment of Batovrin.

Other members of the peace group said that they could not reach the 25-year-old artist by telephone and that when they visited his apartment Sunday no one answered the door.

Police began a systematic crackdown against the peace movement, which calls itself "The Group for Establishing Trust Between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A.," over the weekend. By Saturday night, police had called in and warned 10 of the group's 11 members to stop their activities.

A man wearing a black leather coat got out of an unmarked car at noon when two American reporters approached Batovrin's apartment building Monday. He forbade them from approaching closer than 20 feet to the door. "Go take a walk," he said. When asked if there was a public telephone nearby, the man retorted:

"Do you want to know how much money is in my pocket? Do you want to know how many machine guns are in my unit?" The man, who refused to identify himself, followed the reporters as they left the area.

Reporters who went to the building Sunday night also were prevented from entering but were told politely by a different plainclothes policeman to leave. On that occasion the policeman said foreigners and Russians alike were barred from entering because of police work being done inside the building. He did not elaborate.

The peace group announced its founding at a June 4 news conference at Batovrin's apartment. Its members denied they were dissidents or anti-Soviet but insisted an independent group was necessary to foster Soviet-American trust.

All other Soviet peace groups are officially sanctioned and never veer from the Kremlin line that the United States bears sole responsibility for the arms race and world tension.

The weekend crackdown was evidently aimed at preventing the group from having contact with peace groups in the West. The group managed to distribute three members' telephone numbers in the West.

Deadly professionals, frightened conscripts

Britons encounter divergent soldiers

OUTSIDE PORT STANLEY, Falkland Islands, June 15 (R) — British forces have encountered two different Argentine armies in the Falklands fighting — one made up of deadly professionals, the other of frightened young conscripts.

The British came face to face with both when they pushed the frontline forward to seize Mount Longdon, overlooking the main Argentine garrison in Port Stanley, last weekend. The regular Argentine soldiers are determined. They fight well, and often they fight grimly to the last man.

The conscripts are young men with other chosen professions. They would in the normal course of events have finished their one-year army service and returned to their jobs, perhaps as clerks, bakers or bus drivers. We have seen lots of these conscripts huddled in their dugouts after their positions were overrun.

Some of them looked like teen-agers you would expect to run across in a Buenos Aires coffee bar. Mount Longdon was considered the pivot of the Argentine defensive ring of hills around the Falklands capital.

British forces soon drove the Argentine defenders off the western knoll of the 1,000-ft hill but were pinned down by withering sniper fire from the eastern knoll. One sniper, using a night sight, hit four men in the first wave of British troops. They lay wounded down the slope and for some time other British troops could not reach them.

"Whoever that sniper is, he's bloody good, absolutely first class," said one British officer grudgingly. Eventually the snipers were winked out by flanking attacks.

As we worked our way to the top, we found Argentines hiding in caves and dugouts. "Search them all thoroughly," barked a major. "Look in their hats. You can hide a grenade in a hat." But the dozen prisoners — part of a batch of 60 captured in the assault — were not looking for trouble.

One British soldier saw something moving in one dugout and shouted into it: "Come on out or I'll chuck a bloody grenade in that'll get you out." Out crept three ill-dressed young Argentines.

When a British soldier pored through one prisoner's belongings and tied them in a cloth, the young Argentine thought he was being looted and said indignantly "No no. leave them." "It's all right mate," replied his captor. "It's regulations. You'll get it all back."

The conscripts lived in what seemed squalid conditions. One roofed dugout was made of stone and built like an igloo. The floor was made of ammunition cases and littered with empty ration tins.

Weapons were poorly maintained. One rifle was rusty and did not appear to have been greased for weeks.

N-fuel diversion for arms not seen

VIENNA, June 15 (AP) — The International Atomic Energy Agency detected no diversions of nuclear fuel from power plants to make weapons during 1981, Director-General Hans Blix said in a report Monday.

The report noted, however, that four countries — Pakistan, India, South Africa and Israel — have nuclear facilities which the agency is not permitted to inspect.

The report said 114 countries were parties to the nuclear non-proliferation treaty and have pledged not to develop atomic weapons and to open their plants for inspection.

Enriched uranium and plutonium, two parts of the fuel cycle for nuclear power plants, are also important elements of atomic weapons. The 110-member agency was created to promote peaceful uses of atomic energy and to safeguard against diversion of fuel for weapons use.

Bui Blix, a former Swedish foreign minister who is in his first year at his post, has admitted that it would be difficult for his agency to find any such diversions when they did take place.

Countries who wanted to use their fuel for weapons could make the inspection process difficult or could drop out of the agreement altogether, he was noted.

U.S. court to rule on video recording

WASHINGTON, June 15 (R) — The U.S. Supreme Court agreed to rule on the controversial issue of whether private home recording of television programs is illegal. A decision, which could affect millions of consumers and a billion-dollar industry, is not expected until later this year or early next year.

Without comment, the supreme court judges agreed Monday to review a U.S. appeals court ruling last October that home video recording violated U.S. copyright laws. The appeals court ruling followed a suit filed by two of Hollywood's biggest film and television studios, Walt Disney Productions and Universal Studios, against several video recording manufacturers, including Sony Corp. of America.

The appeals court also said that retailers and advertisers as well as the manufacturers may be held liable for supplying and promoting equipment used in copying programs. The number of people using video recorders in the United States has grown rapidly and an estimated three million machines have been sold there. They cost about $800 to 1,500.

Nepal bans weekly newsmagazine

KATMANDU, Nepal June 15 (AP) — The Nepal government Tuesday banned publication of the vernacular weekly newsmagazine Sameekshya for writing an article on the outlawed Communist Party.

The magazine reported June 11 that members of the Nepal Communist Party had recently met in Katmandu to discuss soaring increases in the price of foodstuffs. The report said the "president of the Nepal Communist Party," Kesharjoo Rayamajhi, addressed the meeting.

The government said the article "suggested the existence" of the Communist Party, which was banned two decades ago.

The Katmandu zoo administration office, meanwhile, has fined the publishers of the weekly 100 rupees (about $7.50) for "contravening" article 5 of Nepal's press laws.

Sisulu's wife put under ban

JOHANNESBURG, June 15 (AFP) — Albertina Sisulu, the 64-year-old wife of imprisoned nationalist leader Walter Sisulu, has been placed under a "banning order" the fifth time since 1963, it was learned here Tuesday.

Under the new government order, which lasts until the end of March 1984, Mrs. Sisulu is banned from taking part in public meetings and subject to police control. The veteran crusader has so far spent 10 years under banning orders.

Her 70-year-old husband Walter, who has served 18 years of a life sentence, was moved from the Robben Island Jail off Cape Town to Pollsmoor Prison in April.

The latest banning order was served on Mrs. Sisulu after she was detained briefly with 250 other persons who took part in a memorial service in Soweto for two persons killed in a road accident and two ANC members killed in Swaziland.

Import credit rate upEEC acts to avert trade war with U.S.

LUXEMBOURG, June 15 (R) — West European governments have agreed that the world's developing nations, but not the very poorest, should be made to pay more for imports bought on credit.

The agreement reached by finance ministers of the European Economic Community will be disappointing news for many Third World nations as well as worrying some EEC states fighting to maintain employment during the recession.

But the agreement was a last-ditch attempt by the EEC to meet U.S. demands for higher rates on export credits in order to bring loan terms more into line with levels prevailing on world money markets.

The 10 EEC countries refused to meet all U.S. demands although diplomats said the ministers apparently had moved far enough to avoid an all-out dispute with Washington.

An accord regulating the terms under which the non-Communist industrialized countries can offer credits expires Tuesday and the Reagan administration had

Uganda raisespetrol price 41%

KAMPALA, June 15 (AFP) — The Ugandan government has announced a 41 percent increase in petrol (oil) prices and hiked prices for premium petrol from 85 shillings a liter to 120 shillings ($1.3).

Uganda radio said that the price increases were due to a reduction in tax rebates on fuel. The rebates have been in effect since June 1 last year.

But the government would continue subsidizing diesel and kerosene prices to help ease the burden on low-income groups, the radio said.

It had been thought that the price increases would be announced after the 1982-83 budget was presented to parliament.

World Bank lends$59m to Egypt

WASHINGTON, June 15 (AP) — Egypt will use a $59 million World Bank loan to improve the traffic flow in Cairo, one of the world's largest cities.

Announcing this Monday, the World Bank said the loan will help finance an integrated package of low-cost traffic engineering and management measures to improve the existing road network and reduce the congestion in Cairo's central business district, along with associated measures to enforce traffic regulations and parking controls.

threatened a credit war with the West Europeans. The present agreement, operated by the Organization for Cooperation and Development (OECD), provides three sets of interest rates for countries classified as relatively rich, intermediate and relatively poor.

The EEC proposed Monday that interest rates paid by relatively rich nations be raised by one percentage point to between 12 and 12.25 percent. It suggested a rise for intermediate countries of between 0.25 and 0.50 points to give a new range of 10.75 to 11.5 percent.

The U.S., which believes that cheap credits distort trading patterns, had been seeking increases of 1.25 percentage points for the first group and 0.50 for the second.

The Europeans also want the world's poorest countries to be shielded from high borrowing costs by a cut in the interest they pay to 9.5 percent from the present 10 percent.

The diplomats said the community would now seek to open negotiations with Washington, probably through the Paris-based OECD, to secure an extension of Tuesday's deadline.

They added that U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan had sent a telex to Monday's meeting warning that he would not prolong the existing regulations.

Freight rates touch new low

LONDON, June 15 (AFP) — Shipowners competed fiercely for the limited business available on the freight markets last week, and rates slumped to four-year lows as reports circulated that there would be no more Soviet grain purchases until September.

Sharp reductions were recorded in the grain trades. In the Great Lakes, a 25,000 tonner was booked to Europe at $18/ton, or $8.50 less than the previous fixture reported in April, and the lowest paid since 1978.

Out of the U.S. Gulf, where activity was well maintained, $8/ton (a four-month low) was agreed for an 88,000 ton grain shipment to Europe and subsequently by a 72,000 tonner in the same trade. Last comparable business was in May when $10.25 was paid.

The U.S. Gulf grain Japan rate for 30,000 tonners dropped over $3 to $18.37, some 50 cents above February's three-year low. For 50,000 shipments in this trade, charterers were offering only $16, or $4.50 below rates paid in May.

Even the small vessels did not escape the weakness, with $15/ton paid for a 15,000 ton grain cargo fixed from the U.S. Gulf to Venezuela, down $4 on previous business.

Pakistan ups spending on defense 7%

ISLAMABAD, June 15 (AP) — Pakistan's military regime increased its defense spending by a 7.08 percent to a total of 20.2 billion rupees ($1.7 billion), amounting to a quarter of the fiscal 1982-83 budget.

In announcing the budget late Monday, Finance Minister Ghulam Ishaq Khan justified the hike in defense spending by indirectly referring to a possible threat from Soviet troops in neighboring Afghanistan.

He said the increase was necessary because of "geopolitical developments which have increased the threat to our national security."

The stepped up expenditures were announced just two days before trilateral talks are to be held in Geneva on the Afghan crisis.

The entire budget runs 57.4 billion rupees ($5 billion) with a deficit of 12.4 billion rupees ($1.08 billion).

Khan added that the budget was drawn up with the aim of restructuring the economy along Islamic principles so that as a "nation, we can now plan for the future with greater self-confidence."

"We can now focus our attack on some long-term fundamental issues," he declared, adding that despite the defense increase an effort was made to strike a balance on development projects.

de if any Soviet activity since the Falklands conflict started, was also affected, with 20,000-tonners booked for grain to Mexico at the lower 37/ton, against $38.25 the week before and over $51 at the peak of the season last year.

South African maize rates to Japan dropped 50 cents to $18.50/ton — only 50 cents above February's three-year low.

More tapioca was shipped out of Thailand to Europe, as charterers hurried to beat the June 19 deadline set by the Thai government on such exports. Communist Chinese tonnage accepted the slightly cheaper $11 (down 25 cents) to ship out 60,000 tons to Europe.

Contrary to the general trend a 66,000-tonner ore-carrier obtained the equivalent of $6.80/ton from Brazil to Europe, a 45 cent improvement on a similar fixture two weeks earlier, although an 80,000-ton ore cargo was paid only $4.75 to Europe from Liberia, a cut of 25 cents.

Chinese interest dried up, with nothing reportedly done in the time charter sector and just one grain fixture out of the U.S. Gulf at an unchanged $27.50/ton. Once again, time-chartering revolved strictly around single trips, rather than long-term hire.

Territorial claims persistThird World wants slice of Antarctic cake

NAIROBI, June 15 (ONS) — Antarctica should be turned into a 'world park' according to some Third World organization, backed by supporters in the West.

They are trying to have the future of Antarctica debated urgently by the United Nations with the underlying aim of opening up the mineral and protein-rich continent to all mankind.

Their latest attempt was made at a recent meeting of the United Nations Environment Program in Nairobi.

Non-governmental organizations (NGOs) who were present as observers submitted a draft resolution calling on the consultative parties to the existing Antarctic Treaty to open their forum to all nations and NGOs to allow for a wider international participation in decisions affecting the continent's future.

The resolution also called for an international conference on Antarctica to be held before 1985 to consider measures for the management of the 'continental ecosystem' in the interests of all nations. The main force behind the campaign, which will also be pressed at the forthcoming U.N. conference on disarmament, is the 'Antarctic and Southern Ocean Coalition.'

The group claims support from an amalgamation of influential bodies such as Friends of the Earth and the Sierra Club. A number of Australian organizations specializing in studies of the Antarctic are in the coalition.

The coalition maintains that although the 1959 Antarctic Treaty provided for membership by any U.N. member state, the initial 12 consultative parties — Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Chile, France, Japan, New Zealand, Norway, South Africa, the U.S., the U.S.S.R. and the United Kingdom — later began to hold 'secret meetings.' Not only nations and NGOs were excluded. So were some United Nations organizations such as FAO and UNEP, which wanted to draw up development projects.

The coalition claims the treaty powers have tried to prevent others from acquiring membership, although nine have succeeded in becoming signatories: Brazil, East and West Germany, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Holland, Poland, Romania and Uruguay.

Territorial claims in Antarctica have a long and complicated history, with numerous disputes. Britain's claim to its slice of Antarctica is based on possession not only of the Falkland Islands, but also of the many other islands to the east and south, including South Georgia, the South Sandwich, South Shetland and South Orkney groups.

The 1959 treaty suspended all territorial claims for 30 years, in the meantime preserving the continent for research. The question of distribution of territory will come up for discussion again in 1991, 30 years after the treaty came into force.

The Southern Ocean Coalition alleges that the existing treaty powers are concerned only about protecting their own interests in oil and krill, the shrimp-like creature which exists in vast quantities in the Southern Ocean.

Dutch firm forms tie-up with Taipei

TAIPEI, June 15 (CNA) — A Dutch computer firm, Ekas B.V., will cooperate with a local manufacturer to produce micro-computers in Taiwan, a province of the Republic of China, for domestic consumption here and for export.

The main export destinations for their products will be the Asian-Pacific countries and Middle East. Ekas is an affiliate company of the Copva B.V. group which also owns the software-producing acoo company and several other subsidiary companies.

Since last September, Ekas has dispatched several experts to look into the Taiwan market and to study the feasibility of producing computers here.

During the May 23-31 Exhibition of European Technology (Eurotec '82), Ekas representative and a local computer manufacturer reached a preliminary agreement on the cooperation bid.

It was reported that the chairman of Ekas will come here soon to sign the agreement, under which the local manufacturer will serve as sales agent in the Taiwan area for Ekas hardware and software, and they will start producing micro-computers in Taiwan by the end of this year.

Chile devalues peso

SANTIAGO, June 15 (AP) — The military government announced an 18 percent devaluation of the peso Monday night.

A statement read over radio and television networks said that as of Tuesday the exchange rate will be 46 pesos per dollar instead of 39. It was the first devaluation of the Chilean currency since June 1979.

Sequel to EMS readjustment

U.S. intervenes on exchanges

WASHINGTON, June 15 (R) — The United States entered foreign exchange markets to stabilize currency values in the wake of a weekend realignment of European currencies, U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan announced.

Officials provided no details for the record, but privately expressed special concern about weakness of the French franc. Governments sometimes attempt to prop up the value of weak currencies by purchasing them in exchange markets.

The franc was officially devalued by 10 percent against the German mark and the Dutch guilder over the weekend and it fell by 5 percent against the dollar when exchange markets opened Monday morning.

It was only the second time the Reagan administration has intervened in the markets. Regan told reporters the move did not represent a change in policy. The administration has consistently resisted pressure from its trading partners to be more active in the markets and said it would act only if the markets were "disorderly."

Regan's statement appears to reflect U.S. agreement at the Versailles summit to moderate its opposition to intervention in the foreign exchange market.

Commenting on the summit, Regan said the final agreements reflect many positions which the U.S. strongly urged, including a commitment by the Western European nations to limit export credits to the Soviet Union.

"They (the Soviets) cannot expect that there's going to be an open purse in the West anymore," he said.

In a separate session with reporters Treasury Undersecretary Beryl Sprinkel said market behavior Monday morning, when the dollar surged ahead, was "quite extreme." The U.S. action was designed "not to achieve a particular exchange rate, but to try to help the market to stabilize."

But he said it occurred within the context of "significant movements" in European currencies and the surge of the dollar following the readjustment of European Monetary System (EMS) exchange rates at the weekend.

But Sprinkel stressed that the move constituted no change in policy, which allowed such interventions in the event of "monetary disorder" on money markets.

The only precedent for the current U.S. government occurred when the United States intervened on the money market on April 30 last year — the day when President Reagan was shot in an assassination attempt.

Sprinkel said that the dollar had advanced five percent against the French franc Monday morning, two percent against the Belgian franc, 1.5 percent against the Swiss franc, 1.2 percent against the mark, and one percent against both the yen and the Dutch guilder.

Italy plans new austerity measures

ROME, June 15 (R) — Italian ministers are preparing public opinion for a new austerity package following the weekend's 2.75 percent devaluation of the lire's central parity in the European Monetary System.

"We must welcome, and not be frightened of, austerity measures," Treasury Minister Beniamino Andreatta said in an interview in Brussels with Italian state radio. He hopes to see the government approve measures like those adopted by the French government.

He said he wants public anger to prevent the government from spending more than is strictly necessary.

Earlier Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini re-affirmed the government's determination to prevent a major overshoot of the 50,000 billion lire public sector borrowing requirement ceiling set in this year's budget.

'Aid India' club gives $3.6b

PARIS, June 15 (AFP) — Members of the "Aid India" consortium Tuesday pledged aid worth about $3.6 billion to India for the fiscal year that began April 1, representing a 5.7 percent increase.

The 13-nation consortium which includes the World Bank group and other international bodies, wound up a two-day session here Tuesday broadly endorsing the policies adopted by India to meet the effects of the world economic crisis and maintain its development effort.

In terms of Special Drawing Rights (SDRS) — the unit of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) — the assistance promised India marked a 17 percent jump compared with last year, delegate R.N. Malhotra said after the meeting.

Malhotra, economics secretary in the Indian finance ministry, said there had been "highly appreciative endorsement" by consortium members of the strategy adopted by India to boost its output and raise its standard of living, "especially in rural areas" and its programs for development and adjustment to "a very difficult balance of payments situation."

He said India expected a current account deficit of about $4 billion in the coming year.

The total external financing requirement would be of the same order, but the gap would be met through concessional world bank aid, through the 5,000 million SDR credit line granted India from the IMF's extended fund facility last November, and through commercial borrowing.

Financial Roundup

Dollar's march unchecked

J.H. Hammond

JEDDAH, June 15 — The dollar's rise continued unchecked on the European markets Tuesday. Relatively high U.S. dollar interest rates and continuing tensions over the Middle East, pushed the European currencies down with the French franc being under particular pressure. The French currency traded at nearer to 6,725 levels compared with 6,21 levels one week ago. With the franc under such pressure, there is renewed talk of another French devaluation within the European Monetary System, although this is bound to be resisted by the French government.

In the bullion markets, gold and silver fell to new low levels taking gold to $314 and silver to $5.51 on Tuesday. The dollars sharp rise over the weekend has taken most bullion dealers by surprise and they are now assessing their prices further downward. Bullion prices have now reached their lowest point for this year — the previous lowest being $316 in late March.

In the European markets, dealers pushed the dollar up after noting the boost in Eurodollar deposit rates in the New York markets. Several more U.S. commercial banks raised their prime lending rates to 16½ percent levels, reversing the earlier decision to drop rates to 16 percent.

In the money markets, the one-year deposit is fast approaching the 16 percent level with rates of 15 9/16 percent being quoted. It was only a week ago that the one-year rate was quoted at under 15 percent. The shorter term dollar rates continue to be depressed with the one-month rate hardly moving from 14 15/16 percent Tuesday and the week-fixed at 14 13/16 percent. Some dealers were predicting that rates would ease back and that these rises in European markets merely reflected a European 'delayed-reaction' to weekend events in the United States market, for example the larger than expected rise of $1.5 billion in the U.S. money supply figures. They noted that there was still some skepticism on whether the U.S. had really reached a workable compromise on the size of the U.S. federal budget deficit.

In the various currency news, the British pound fell back to 1.7530 on Tuesday despite the British victory in the Falklands and the final reported surrender of the Argentinian forces there. The Bank of England had to intervene to stabilize the rate and dealers later reported a rise to 1.7580 levels. The Japanese yen was under pressure too, falling to 252.00 levels in some heavy selling while the German mark fell back to 2.4260 levels forcing the Swiss franc to follow suit and trade at 2.0780-90 on Tuesday. This compares with 2.0580 on Monday. The Italian lire, the other currency to be devalued within the European Monetary System over the weekend, fell to 1365.00 against the dollar, from 1285 last weekend.

With the Bahraini based banks closed Tuesday, the local markets experienced another dull and quiet trading day. Rates given were for information purposes only and very few deals were undertaken either in the money market or exchange operations. The rial indication rates were quoted at slightly higher rates however, compared to Monday levels. The week-fixed is now quoted at 14½-15½ percent while the one-month rate remained unchanged at 14½-14¾ percent. In the local exchanges there were : were hardly any inter-bank quotes around, with some traders "guessing" it was 3.4285-00 levels.

With a wild 12-11 win

Wills pulls Cubs out of 13-game losing run

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP) — Bump Wills collected four hits, including a three-run homer, to highlight a 19-hit Chicago assault against five Philadelphia pitchers Monday as the Cubs snapped their 13-game losing streak with a wild 12-11 victory over the Phillies.

The losing streak tied the Cubs' all-time record set in 1944. The last Chicago victory had come on May 29. The Cubs scored six runs off Philadelphia starter Steve Carlton in just over three innings. Five runs came in the second on RBI singles by Wills, Gary Woods and Bill Buckner and an unusual two-run infield single by Leon Durham, who drove in four runs.

Buckner added an RBI single in the fourth off Carlton, 7-7, while Wills homered in the fifth and Jody Davis added a solo shot in the sixth for the Cubs, who made six errors to aid the Phillies attack.

Darrel Porter tripped home Ken Oberkell in the third inning and scored in Dane Torg's sacrifice fly giving the St. Louis Cardinals a

2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos. Bob Forsch was the winner with relief help from Bruce Sutter.

Ellis Valentine hit a two-run homer as the New York Mets overcame 10 strikeouts by Don Robinson to nip the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1. Houston knuckleballer Joe Niekro pitched a six-hitter and Denny Walling knocked in three runs, two with a homer, as the Astros downed the Atlanta Braves 9-0.

In the American League, Tony Armas drove home Oakland's deciding run in a two-run third inning and Rickey Henderson stole his 63rd base of the season as the A's beat the Toronto Blue Jays 4-2. Willie Upshaw hit a two-run homer in the first inning off winner Matt Keough.

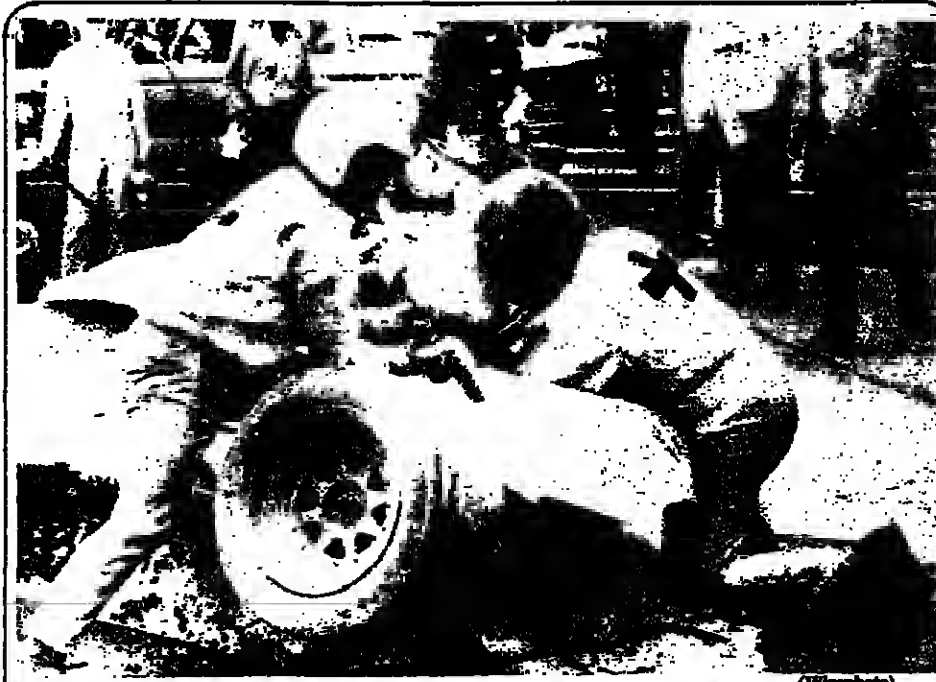

Dan Ford capped a five-run seventh-inning outburst with a pinch-hit, Grand Slam homer, propelling the streaking Baltimore Orioles past the Milwaukee Brewers 9-4. The Orioles have now won eight of their last nine games.

Dave Collins smacked his first homer of the season to back Ron Guidos' five-hit pitching as the New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 5-1. Paul Splittorff and Dan Quisenberry combined on a five-hitter and George Brett slammed a solo homer, leading the Kansas City Royals to a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Len Barker fired a four-hitter in the opener and Rick Sutcliffe and Dan Spillner combined to duplicate the performance in the nightcap as the Cleveland Indians swept a two-night doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers 5-0 and 2-1. Rick Manning homered in the opener for the Indians which snapped a five-game losing streak, while Andre Thornton cracked his 18th homer in the second game.

Jim Beattie and Mike Stanton combined on a three-hitter and Bruce Bochte, Dave Henderson and Al Cowens powered solo homers as the Seattle Mariners downed the Texas Rangers 4-0.

Dusty Baker hit his 11th home run with two outs in the 11th inning to propel the Los Angeles Dodgers to 4-3 victory over San Diego before a crowd of 49,973, the second largest in Padres' history. Steve Howe, 5-1, earned the victory, Steve Garvey and Ken Landreaux also homered for Los Angeles.

As Cosmos strengthens top spot Birkenmeier at dazzling best

NEW YORK, June 15 (AP) — West German Hubert Birkenmeier turned in nine saves for the Cosmos in their 2-0 victory over the Tampa Bay Rowdies, one of the highlights of last week's action in the North American Soccer League.

Birkenmeier, who played with F.C. Frieburg of West Germany's Second Division before joining the Cosmos in 1979, turned in his 20th career shutout in the Saturday game, his third this season.

American Steve Moyers put the East Division leaders, Cosmos on the scoreboard in the 82nd minute, and Englishman Steve Hunt had the other goal four minutes later.

"When you see your goalkeeper save like he did, it inspires you like crazy," said Moyers.

"I always considered him to be one of the best in the league," said Cosmos coach Professor Julio Mazzel. "In my opinion he is the best in the world, not just the league, when he is on the ground. He is playing better than ever, his personality is perfect for a goalkeeper. He is shy off the field, and intense and competitive on it."

Earlier in the week, Cosmos backup goalie David Brizio of the United States registered a shutout against Italy's A.C. Milan, with Hunt scoring the only goal.

The Toronto Blizzard, second in the East Division, lost its only game of the week, 2-0 to the Jacksonville Tea Men. Englishman Alan Green and Argentina's Ricardo Alon scored the goals. Toronto won its other game of the week 1-0 over the Portland Timbers on a goal by Englishman Keith Bertschin, formerly of Norwich City.

The Fort Lauderdale strikers continued to lead the Southern Division, beating the Chicago Sting 2-1 Saturday after a 4-2 loss to Tampa Bay Wednesday. The Rowdies had goals from West German Peter Nogly, Brazilians Tatu and Luis Fernando, and Pedro Debitto of the United States.

The San Jose Earthquakes, leaders in the West Division, have won eight of their last 10 games, including a 3-2 victory Wednesday over the Tulsa Roughnecks. Italian-born Tony Crescitelli scored two of the San Jose goals, and Englishman Godfrey Ingram the other.

The Vancouver Whitecaps, winner of four games in a row, took a 2-1 overtime victory over the Seattle Sounders Saturday, with Englishman Peter Lorimer and Ray Hankin scoring. Hankin's game-winner came 40 seconds into the overtime period.

The San Diego Sockers completed their six-game winning streak with two victories last week, including a 2-1 shoot-out victory over Portland Saturday. West German Jean Willrich scored the Sockers only goal in regulation time, and Julie Veeve tallied the game-winner on the Sockers' final shootout attempt.

Pacemen help Sussex to impressive victory

LONDON, June 15 (Agencies) — Sussex firmly entrenched themselves in the second spot of the County Cricket Championship table when their pace duo, Garth Le Roux and Imran Khan, bowled them to an impressive innings and 37-run victory over Worcestershire at Hove Monday.

Worcestershire skittled for 85 runs in their first innings, fared no better in the second and were all out for 153, falling 37 short of avoiding an innings defeat. Worcestershire were sent reeling by South African Garth Le Roux, who took the first three wickets for 15 runs in 35 balls, after Sussex had taken a 190-run first innings lead.

Pakistani captain Imran Khan took up from where Le Roux had left off with a haul of three for 33 to break the Worcestershire's resistance. Only Worcester skipper Phil Neale tried to salvage some pride for Worcester with a gritty 40 as the other batsmen showed little signs of making a match of it.

Leaders Middlesex had seven men give out leg before as they collapsed from 98 for two to 158, 45 behind Yorkshire, at Sheffield. Middlesex Captain Mike Brearley was involved in stormy exchanges with spectators after taking a catch to dismiss Chris Old. The former England captain was jeered by an angry crowd, which provoked Brearley.

Some of the crowd suggested that the catch was not fair and Brearley's quick retort to that was: "What do you know about it? Go home. Do you think I'm a cheater?" Yorkshire finished with 79 for three, increasing the lead to 124 with seven wickets in hand.

Glamorgan's Pakistani captain Javed Miandad, playing his last game for the County before joining the Pakistan touring party, shared a fourth-wicket stand of 103 in 85 minutes with Alan Lewis Jones, to prevent a follow-on against Warwickshire at Cardiff.

Miandad, the deposed Pakistan captain, made 68 and Jones 72 enabling Glamorgan to reach 250, 141 in arrears. Chris Leach, who achieved a career-best five for 68, Warwickshire struggled to 89 for four in the second innings with T. Lloyd getting 42.

Essex amassed 300 for three declared to take a first innings lead of 63 runs. Ken McEwan 92 not out and former England captain Keith Fletcher (73 not out) shared an unbroken stand of 117 after Graham Gooch had blasted a quick 66. Lancashire, however, had wiped out the lead and were 120 for two wickets at Liverpool. G. Fowler was unbeaten on 52.

Kent were in a tight spot against champions Nottinghamshire at Trent Bridge. After conceding a 26 run lead to Notts, Kent were three for four wickets in their second venture. Derek Underwood had kept Kent in the game with a haul of five for 70 to restrict Notts to 183.

Northamptonshire's Wayne Larkins hit 137 and Somerset's Jeremy Lloyds a career-best 132 not out in an exciting day at Northampton which featured two declarations. Larkins struck five sixes and 14 fours in 210 minutes as Northamptonshire added 165 in 34 overs before declaring at 302 for five. Then Somerset captain Brian Rose offered them a challenge by declaring at 203 for one. At the close Northamptonshire were 54 for one in their second innings — 153 runs ahead.

The Oval pitch provided lift and life for pace bowlers and, apart from Graham Roope, Surrey struggled after Gloucestershire had spent 92.4 overs making 239 for eight before declaring. Surrey declared at 150 for five, conceding a lead of 89 which Gloucestershire increased to 114 without loss by the close.

Arnold Muhren to don United colors

IPSWICH, June 15 (AFP) — Ipswich's Dutch international midfielder player, Arnold Muhren Monday agreed to sign for another English First Division club Manchester United without a fee changing hands.

The details were ironed out in Manager Ron Atkinson's absence by United chairman, Martin Edwards, and the final signing will take place on July 31 when Muhren's contract with Ipswich expires.

The 31-year-old Muhren, was at the end of his contract at Ipswich and free to negotiate his own terms. When he signed for Ipswich in 1978 from Dutch First Division club Twente Enschede, Muhren insisted on a clause in his contract which gave him the freedom to move, without a fee, when he had completed his engagement.

Muhren said: "United are one of the most famous clubs in the world and I would not have signed in England. It was difficult to leave Ipswich, with whom I spent four very happy years." United have agreed for a three-year contract.

Edwards said: "He is experienced and a cultured player and one of the reasons we signed him was that there was no fee involved. Nobody spends big money these days. The transfer system of big fees has died the death."

Meanwhile, operario, a Brazilian pro team, defeated Malaysia 3-1 (1-1) Monday night and advanced to the semifinals in the 12th President's Cup Soccer Championship.

In another game at Seoul Stadium, Thailand edged the West German pro team Bayer Leverkusen 1-0 for its first win against one draw and two losses in the preliminary round.

The German team lost all four games it played in the five-team Group 'B' elimination round, Malaysia finished with one win, one draw and two losses.

The Brazilian team, with a record of three wins against one draw, will meet the Dutch pro team Philips S.V. in the semifinals to be played Wednesday. The other semifinal will pit the South Korea national team Hwarang against Hallelujah, Korea's only team, which had a 3-1-0 record in Group 'B'.

Amritraj goes through the grind

ROEHAMPTON, England, June 15 (AP) — Vijay Amritraj of India a quarterfinalist at Wimbledon last year, did what Bjorn Borg refused to do Monday and began playing for his place in the qualifying tournament at Roehampton.

Amritraj downed American Terry Bennett 6-1, 6-4 in the first round. Wimbledon starts next Monday.

Borg refused to play Wimbledon because he would have had to compete in the qualifying competition for a place. Like Amritraj, he had not entered the required minimum number of Grand Prix events in 1982.

The Indian won his match in 66 minutes and said: "I would not dream of missing Wimbledon. I hope I can qualify and do as well as last year, when I reached the last eight before losing in five sets to Jimmy Connors."

"I have had hundred of letters from people in India, asking me to play. This is because, in my country, Wimbledon and the Davis Cup are the only two tennis events that matter."

Drivers to sue FISA

MONTREAL, June 15 (AP) — The lawyer representing 25 Formula One racers said the drivers were suing the Federation International De Sport Automobile (FISA) to annual sanctions brought after the drivers staged a one-day boycott of the South African Grand Prix in a dispute over licences.

At that time, 27 of 29 Formula One drivers were fined $5,000 with a possibility of suspension for one race if they offended again within six months of Jan. 28. Jan Paulsson said the fines and sanctions were indicative of extreme authority on the part of FISA, to the point of interfering with the drivers' right to make a living.

The $500,000 suit involves all those originally fined except Keke Rosberg of Finland, of the Saudia-Williams team and Slim Borgudd of Sweden, who drove two races for Tyrrell but now is out of Formula One racing.

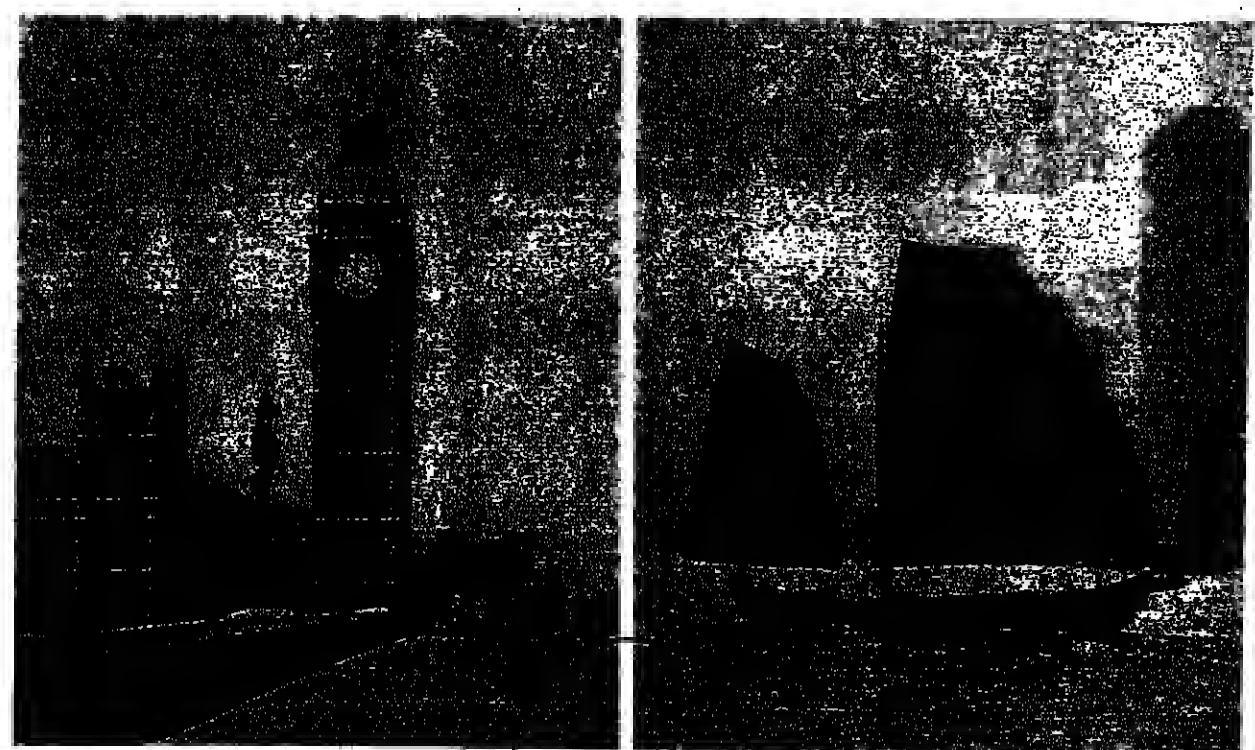

The late Canadian Gilles Villeneuve, who died after a crash during final qualifying for the Belgian Grand Prix, is the other driver not involved in the suit.

Kenyon confirms spot

GATESHEAD, Northeast England, June 15 (AFP) — Steve Kenyon and Dave Cannon ensured their places in the British team for the European Games in Athens by taking first and second places in the British Marathon Championship here Sunday.

Kenyon won in 2h 11:40, followed by Cannon, 1:49 behind. Hugh Jones had already guaranteed himself a place in the team for Athens by winning last month's London Marathon in 2h 09:25 and was exempted from Sunday's event.

Late goals add touch to Brazilians' class

As Soviets raise visions of an upset

SEVILLE, Spain, June 15 (R) — The football wizards of Brazil turned on the magic against the Soviet Union to snatch a last-ditch 2-1 victory in the opening World Cup Group Six match Monday night.

After Brazilian goalkeeper Valdir Peres had presented the Soviet Union with a gift goal, in the 33rd minute, Brazil teased and tormented their bemused opponents with a mesmerizing display of brilliant dribbling, dazzling passing and explosive long-range shooting.

The Brazilians also showed they have the executioner's touch when they turned seeming defeat into a famous victory with two classic goals from captain Socrates and winger Eder in the 73rd and 88th minutes respectively. On this form Tele Santana's glittering assembly of stars must be favorites to win the Cup for the fourth time.

But Eder's winning goal was a cruel blow to the Soviet Union, who were without a number of injured stars and had performed above and beyond the call of duty. With a draw very much on the cards Eder pounced on a loose ball on the edge of the Soviet penalty area and rifled a stunning drive past stationary goalkeeper Renat Dasaev.

RISES IN VAIN: Russian goalkeeper Renat Dasaev, who brought off some acrobatic saves against Brazil, stretches in vain to intercept a Socrates (not in pic) curling shot. The goal, Brazil's equalizer, spurred them on to dizzy heights, with Brazil chalking full points after a final 2-1 verdict.

Brazilians dance to the samba beats

MADRID, June 15 (R) — The rhythmic thrub of Samba hands pounded out the World Cup message Monday night — Brazil ate back. It was all there in their 2-1 triumph over the Soviet Union, the magic, the drama and the virtuoso touches by which Brazil manage to turn soccer into pure theater. Thousands of Brazilians, who sang and swayed through the streets of Seville, reveled after Brazil had bounced back into the game, and eventually won.

In Brazil, excited fans from Belem on the Amazon river to Porto Alegre near the Uruguayan border began a night of celebrations as soon as the final whistle blew in Seville. Four years ago in the 1978 World Cup Brazil seemed to have lost their way. They were no longer able to baffle opponents by their mercurial quickening of the match tempo, their remarkable improvisation and their dazzling individual flourishes.

They tried to switch to the more robust European style and failed. But now Santana has moulded his team into something resembling the great Brazilians of the past.

England hands India a 7-wicket thrashing

LONDON, June 15 (AFP) — Allan Lamb hurried England to a seven-wicket victory over India in the first five-day Cornhill Cricket Test at Lord's here Tuesday with a flurry of strokes.

South African-born Lamb, playing in his first Test, gave England a smooth ride on the way to the 42 runs they needed, hitting five boundaries as victory was wrapped up in 40 minutes, during the 11th over.

Kapil Dev, who picked up 350 pounds when he was named "man of the match" by Fred Trueman, was not able to reproduce the fire which brought him three wickets and a fourth-day fright for England, who resumed Tuesday on 23 for three.

David Gower was nowhere near as assured as his partner. He was beaten twice by Kapil

Ramirez forced out of Wimbledon

LONDON, June 15 (AFP) — It was a case of no luck 13 for Mexico's Raul Ramirez as injury Tuesday forced him out of the Wimbledon Tennis Championships, which starts here next Monday.

Ramirez was seeded 13th, but announced that he would have to withdraw. His place is taken by 14th seed Brian Gottfried of the

Mikkola does it again

GLASGOW, Scotland, June 15 (AFP) — Finland's Hannu Mikkola won the Scottish Motor Rally for the fourth time here Tuesday coming from last to first in the three-day event which finished in Glasgow.

Mikkola's Audi Quattro broke a steering arm on the first of the 49 special stages and dropped to last place among the 61 crews who took part in the international event, the fourth round of the RAC Open Rally Championship.

But in the next three days he climbed steadily back through the field and went into the lead with three stages to go.

One Brazilian who did not enjoy the evening's performance was goalkeeper Valdir Peres, who endured a personal nightmare. His worst moment came 12 minutes from the interval when the Soviet Union, who had always looked dangerous in their sporadic raids, broke out of defense and midfielder Andrei Bal tried a hopeful shot from 25 meters. Bal's effort appeared to carry little threat but the hapless Valdir Peres contrived to juggle the ball into the corner of his net.

It took Brazil 40 minutes to equalize. Socrates gained possession about 30 meters out, took two steps and despatched a sizzling right-foot shot unerringly into the top left-hand corner of the net. With Socrates and Falcão dictating in midfield and Zico always ready to burst through the middle, the Brazilians laid siege to the Soviet goal for long periods.

Only the elegant and acrobatic Dasaev denied them a cluster of goals and as early as the second minute he pulled off a superb save when Zico let fly from close in. However, the hefty Soviet goalkeeper erred once when center-forward Serginho broke clear, but Serginho lofted the ball wildly over the bar with the goal at his mercy.

But the Soviet Union, who beat Brazil 2-1 in Rio De Janeiro two years ago, were always dangerous in their counter-attacks. Winger Ramaz Shengelia was a constant menace and Brazilian defender Luisinho was lucky not to concede a penalty when he appeared to haul back the flying winger by his shirt on one occasion.

Spanish referee Augusto Lamo Castillo incurred the wrath of the Soviet players again when he turned down a strong penalty appeal for apparent handball by Luisinho in the closing minutes.

With the temperature hovering around 35 centigrade Brazil forced the early pace and Socrates and Dirceu built an intricate passing movement which left star striker Zico with a clear run at goal in the second minute. The Brazilian No. 10 hammered in a low shot which Soviet goalkeeper Renat Dasaev did well to turn away for a corner.

But the Soviet Union replied immediately and Andrei Bal headed narrowly past the post from an Oleg Blokhin cross. But most of the action centered around Dasaev and Junior and Serginho both went close.

The Brazilians immediately launched a series of counter-attacks after Peres' tragic blunder, and in one raid Dasaev was forced to punch the ball clear of a cluster of players to relieve the pressure. But there was another scare for the Brazilians when a Soviet attack ended with Vladimir Bessonov stabbing the ball just wide of Valdir Peres' right goalpost.

Brazil started the second half with Paolo Isidoro on the right wing in place of Dirceu. Paolo Isidoro made an immediate impact with a strong run along the wing but when the attack broke down the Soviet Union again had Peres in trouble.

Yuri Gavrilov surged through the middle and crashed in a left-foot shot from 20 meters which the Brazilian goalkeeper fumbled but gathered at a second attempt. It was a different story at the other end where the confident Dasaev was the undisputed master of his penalty area.

The Brazilian attacks began to take on a frantic look although Zico raised the spirits of the 8,000 South American fans in the stadium with a bicycle kick which flew past the post.

BRAZIL — Valdir Peres, Leandro, Oscar, Luisinho, Junior, Socrates, Zico, Falcão, Dirceu (substitute Paolo Isidoro), Serginho, Eder.

SOVIET UNION — Dasaev, Sulakvelidze, Chivadze, Baltacha, Demyanenko, Darsella (Sergei Andreyev), Bessonov, Bal, Shengelia, Gavrilov (Yuri Suslopov), Blokhin.

day night's spectacular triumph, and the center of picturesque Seville as 6,000 Brazilian supporters danced a samba through the streets.

It was less frenetic than the Klaxon-sounding motorcades which jammed the streets of Buenos Aires during the 1978 World Cup. But Brazilian smiles were as sunny as the Costa Del Sol. The Brazilian players relaxed by the swimming pool at their hotel just outside Seville, basking in the sunshine, reliving the touches of greatness they found against the unlucky Soviets. But manager Tele Santana made no effort to disguise his relief in overcoming the first hurdle in a month-long campaign.

Santana admitted there had been mistakes, which would have to be ironed out before the remaining Group Six games. The most obvious weakness in Brazil's performance was the goalkeeping of Valdir Peres.

"The players were nervous and were unsettled by the opening goal," Santana said. "But it is nice to get the first game out of the way with two points in the bag."

bowler who chose Kapil Dev for the man of the match award, said: "Ian Botham, Dilip Vengsarkar and Bob Willis were all in the running. But Kapil's eight wickets and scores of 41 and 89, in 55 balls, tipped the verdict his way. He is a fine player and a giant of an all-rounder in present day's cricket."

Bob Willis, relishing victory in his first Test as England captain, said later: "I was very pleased that the middle-order batsmen played positive cricket."

"Apart from Kapil Dev with a new ball, the only blemish was a few catches going down. We have lost Test matches in the past through missing chances, but they did not harm us this time fortunately."

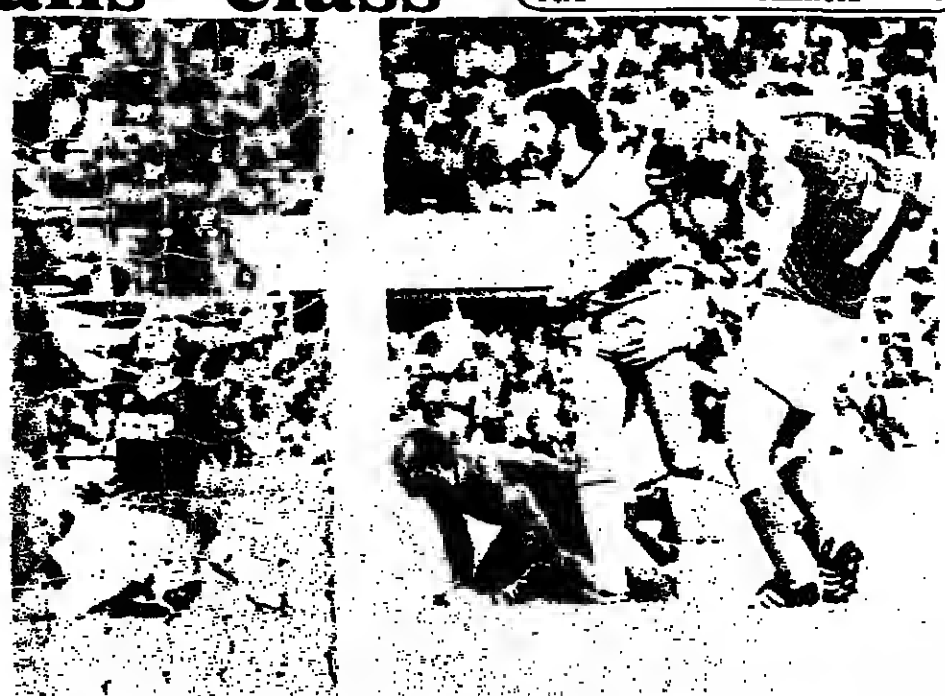

Willis said that England would not always go into a match with four seamers, adding: "It always depends on the pitch, but there is no doubt that their (India) middle order is vulnerable to the ball moving off the seam."

India's captain Sunil Gavaskar said: "It was a very encouraging fourth day performance for us. The efforts of Kapil Dev, Dilip Vengsarkar and the others have done wonders for our morale, which was pretty low on Friday."

Gavaskar pinpointed the Randall-Edmonds stand as the key to England's success, and admitted that India are worried about finding a secure opening partner for himself. "We are desperately hoping that Roy or Parker will get into some semblance of form for the Old Trafford Test next week."

Roger Milla baffles Peru

LA CORUNA, June 15 (Agencies) — Bearded forward Roger Milla and goalkeeper Thomas Nkono were the African heroes here Tuesday when underdogs Cameroon created a sensation by holding Peru to a 0-0 draw in their opening World Cup clash.

Milla, the Cameroon's talented 30-year-old frontrunner, had the Peruvian defense in all sorts of trouble and produced several piercing runs and dangerous shots. Nkono, the 27-year-old Canon Yaounde player, didn't put a foot wrong in the African goal.

Twice Milla went close to scoring before the game was five minutes old and then, after half an hour, he had what looked like a superb goal, disallowed for offside.

Turning sharply on a ball from Abega, Milla, who plays for French First Division side Bastia, slammed a long, dipping drive

But the Africans looked less effective in defense and when the South Americans' slow build-up took them within the range of goal there were occasional moments of panic in the Cameroon defense. But goalkeeper Nkono came out trumps when all were beaten.

Cameroon relied on quickness and superb physical conditioning to hold Peru. Before the match, even the Cameroon players were gloomy about their chances of success against the Peruvians, who were making their fifth World Cup appearance.

"We don't have any major ambition. We've just come to learn," said Cameroon midfielder Jean-Pierre Tokoto. But the only black African side in the 24-team, month-long tournament made up for inferior technical skills with strength, speed and agility, pinning the Peruvian down in midfield.

Peru tried repeatedly to break through the center, but the Africans clogged the penalty area, denying the South Americans space. Only when Geronimo Barbadillo came in for veteran midfielder Teofilo Cubillas in the 56th minute did Peru make a serious attempt to break through.

Peru: Ramon Quiroga, Jaime Duarte, Salvador Salguero Gonzalez, Ruben Toribio Diaz, Jorge Olaechea, Julio Cesar Uribe, Cesar Cueto, Jose Velazquez, German Leguia (Guillermo La Rosa), Teofilo Cubillas (Geronimo Barbadillo), Juan Carlos Oblitas.

Cameroon: Thomas Nkono, Michel Kaham, Rene Ndjea, Elie Onana-Eloundou, Ephrem Mbom, Emmanuel Kunde, Gregoire Mbida, Theophile Abega Mbida, Ibrahim Aoudou, Roger Milla (Jean-Pierre Tokoto 88th), Jacques Nguema (Paul Bahoken 73rd).

Rough masters the 'tango'

MALAGA, June 15 (AFP) — Danny McGrain, Alan Rough and Gordon Strachan have a special reason for wanting to do well in the World Cup finals. They are the three Scottish-based players in Jock Stein's selection and as such they carry the reputation of the game north of the border.

The mixture between Anglo-Scots (those who play in English League Football) and the stay-at-home Scots is a traditional problem for the national side but McGrain and Rough especially succeeded in forming a fine blend.

McGrain, the Celtic and Scotland skipper, is Scotland's second most capped player of all time after Kenny Dalglish. He played in the 1974 World Cup finals in West Germany where he was rated one of the top defenders in the competition but a serious knee injury meant he missed out in Argentina.

The Scotland skipper said emphatically, that the present team under Jock Stein has been more relaxed than teams in previous finals. "Before 1974 we had rough games in Belgium and Norway. It's better to be relaxed like this, as players can get very tight before games such as these," he said.

McGrain, as the senior most in the Scotland party, said that it was his responsibility to calm down the younger players. "There are a lot of youngsters this time, but lads such as Allan Hansen and John Wark have plenty of experience of European club football, unlike myself in 1974," he said.

McGrain thinks the Scottish support in Malaga could be vital. "As long as they don't act silly," he stressed.

Germans confident

GIJON, June 15 (R) — West Germany, brimming with the confidence that won them the World Cup in 1974, are ready to overwhelm newcomer Algeria here Wednesday as they set out to regain the trophy.

West Germany, reigning European champions and twice winners of the World Cup, bring enormous skill and experience to Spain. Algeria, who have never reached the finals before, are a largely unknown mixture of "exile" professionals and home-bound players, banned since from widening their experience and increasing their earnings with clubs abroad.

Germany have long recovered from the ineffectiveness and disarray of their 1978 campaign which ended in bitterness. They are full of assurance since their arrival in the northern province last Saturday, ready to surge to the final for the third time in five tournaments.

But at least Algeria can take heart from West Germany's feeble performance against North African opposition in the last World Cup. They labored to a 2-1 win over Morocco in 1970 and managed only a goalless draw against Tunisia in 1978. And in their only previous meeting with Algeria in 1964, the Germans were beaten 2-0.

Brooking, Keegan not in squad for opener

BILBAO, June 15 (AP) — After years of waiting for his World Cup chance, England captain Kevin Keegan is out of Wednesday's opening group four match against France with a back injury.

"I'm very disappointed but it's out the end of the world," The affable 31-year-old Keegan said Tuesday after manager Ron Greenwood had named his line-up for the crucial game at the San Mames Stadium in Bilbao.

As expected, midfielder star Trevor Brooking also misses the game with a groin injury, which has been slow in responding to treatment.

Greenwood, 63, said he expected both players to be "available for selection" for the second England match against Czechoslovakia on June 20.

Keegan's injury, which happened in training on Saturday but which was hushed up by England officials until Monday night, is a recurrence of a problem he picked up in England six weeks ago. He seemed to recover quickly and was able to take his place in his club team, Southampton, the following Saturday.

Greenwood said that despite the injuries, "We have other players who can come into the side, take Kevin and Trevor's places and still be at our strongest."

Greenwood said the injury to Keegan could work to England's advantage. "It may be that the French have been concentrating on how to play him. Now they'll have to worry about Trevor Francis instead."

Taking Brooking's place in the side is Arsenal's 23-year-old midfielder Graham Rix, whose sparkling performance in a recent warm-up match against Holland probably gave him the nod over Tottenham's Glenn Hoddle, arguably more talented but less consistent than his North London rival.

Francis will play exactly the same role as Keegan up front but Rix told reporters he did not know whether he would play behind the two strikers or wide on the left. "Up till now, I was happy just to be in the squad but this is fantastic," said a smiling Rix after Tuesday morning's training session.

Greenwood said the French team, with Michel Platini at center-forward, was similar to the one he had anticipated. "Except Rene Girard, they are all as I expected and do not present anything new to me," he said.

Greenwood was undecided about who will captain the side and is not expected to make an announcement until the day of the match. Defenders Phil Thompson and Mick Mills, both of whom have done the job before are favorites.

Team: Peter Shilton, Mick Mills, Phil Thompson, Terry Butcher, Bryan Sansom, Steve Coppell, Ray Wilkins, Kenny Robson, Trevor Francis, Paul Mariner, Graham Rix.

Danny McGrain... happy with Stein

Alan Rough is one of the most maligned goalkeepers in Britain. But he has been a regular in the Scottish side and has amassed a record number of caps. Rough played in Argentina four years ago and was fortunate to survive the aftermaths following poor games against Peru and Iran.

He is in no doubt that the organization is better this time and agrees with McGrain that relaxation and confidence building has been the key factor in the Scottish preparation.

"There is not much pressure on the players. I think Scotland can do well as we have a very experienced side," he said.

Rough's major problem has been adapting to the official World Cup ball — the Tango — supplied by 'Addidas' of West Germany." It's blown up more and is lighter than the ones we use in Scotland. It tends to fly and do all sorts of strange things, but we've been using it over a week now and I feel confident with it," he said.

Alan Rough ... Optimistic

Strachan, the little red-haired midfielder behind much of Aberdeen's success over the past three years, differs from the other two in that this is his first World Cup finals. Already he is being compared to former Scotland captain Billy Bremner, both in style of play and temperament. Strachan is not convinced.

"Bremner was harder than me, but I think I am faster. Also I haven't learned to master a game the way Bremner did," the Edinburgh-born player said.

World Cup tid-bits

VIGO, (R) — A regional Spanish newspaper Tuesday deplored what it called shoddy organization of the Group One opening game between Poland and Italy. Tickets were not made available at the stadium box office until the last moment, resulting to a crowd of only 27,000 compared with the expanded stadium capacity of 40,000, the newspaper, El Ideal Gallego, said.

MALAGA, (R) — Hotels on the Costa Del Sol in Southern Spain are having their worst June for 10 years, with many rooms unoccupied, the president of the regional hotel association said Tuesday. Luis Callejon blamed Mundispana, the World Cup's official travel agency, and the Spanish Football Federation which he said were demanding too much money.

PONTEVEDRA, (AP) — Italian coach Enzo Bearzot said Tuesday his squad's 0-0 draw with Poland means the World Cup has yet to start for either team. "We all expect Peru to beat Cameroon later, so the draw with Poland means the World Cup has yet to start for both teams," said Bearzot, discussing Monday's game. VALENCIA, (R) — Hosts Spain launch their challenge against Honduras here Wednesday determined to wipe out the disappointments of recent years and give their supporters a triumph to savour.

ALICANTE, (AP) — Hungarian coach Kalman Meszoly said Tuesday he has devised a strategy to stop Argentina's Diego Maradona when they meet here Friday. He insisted, however, that he was not looking past Tuesday night's match against El Salvador in nearby Elche.

VALADOLID, (AP) — "I am very cool," Kuwaiti coach Carlos Alberto Pereira said. "Because the pressure will be on the others." Carlos Alberto, who is from Brazil, meant that England, France and Czechoslovakia must do well against his team to qualify for the next round.

STRASBOURG, (AFP) — Czechoslovak international Premysl Bickovsi is to join French League club Strasbourg next season. Bickovsi, the attacking midfielder player is in Spain with the Czech squad.

At U.N. session

Schmidt seeks end to arms race

UNITED NATIONS, June 13 (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt called on nuclear powers Monday to heed growing public impatience with their weapons buildup and to negotiate an end to the nuclear arms race.

"We must be conscious of the danger that our citizens, frightened of the terrors of a nuclear holocaust, may soon no longer be able or willing to understand why negotiations concerning practical steps toward disarmament go on and on for years," Schmidt said in an address at the start of the second week of the U.N. General Assembly's special session on disarmament.

As Schmidt spoke, police were arresting more than 1,000 anti-nuclear demonstrators attempting a peaceful blockade of the U.N. missions of nuclear powers. Two days earlier, 750,000 marchers participated in a giant disarmament rally that stretched from U.N. headquarters to New York's Central Park.

"The impatience of the people — and not only of the younger people is growing — impatience with governments that appear to be doing no more than talk while at the same time they are developing, producing and installing ever more deadly weapons," Schmidt said.

The West German chancellor, faced with an active nuclear movement within his own Social Democratic Party, balanced his praise of "the great and positive moral force" of peace movements with a warning that there "can be no security without an approximate balance of military forces."

"I know that a reduction in the weapons arsenals that are filled to overflowing cannot be achieved through plebiscites," Schmidt declared. "This can only be accomplished by means of untiring and difficult negotiations."

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt

The great breakthrough that would eliminate the danger of war once and for all remains a dangerous illusion. And unilateral disarmament, opening the door to pressure by other powers, must be recognized by any reasonable persons as extremely dangerous."

Noting that West Germany had committed itself not to build or possess its own nuclear weapons, Schmidt insisted that the nuclear powers "after such a long time, meet their commitments" to negotiate effective measures toward nuclear disarmament.

"We insist on our right to nuclear disarmament," the West German leader said. Schmidt endorsed the disarmament proposal advanced by President Reagan when he said,

"we give our unqualified support to the proposal that the United States and the Soviet Union forego all land-based intermediate-range nuclear missiles" in Europe.

The Soviet Union now has some 600 medium-range SS-20 missiles, "a great number of which are targeted on my country," Schmidt said adding, "any single one of these modern, highly accurate missiles with three warheads, is capable of destroying my home town of Hamburg and the neighboring cities of Luebeck and Kiel at one blow."

The start of Monday's session was delayed as the assembly paid homage to the memory of King Khaled, in whose honor the U.N. flag was flown at half-mast.

President Aristides Royo Sanchez of Panama, in his speech on disarmament, called for a Latin American summit conference to work for the creation of an "exclusively Latin American" security organization.

The proposal was clearly prompted by his expressed disappointment at the failure of the Organization of American States, because of the United States' position, to support sanctions against Britain for resisting Argentina's seizure of the Falkland Islands, or Malvinas.

Royo also urged that, in connection with the disarmament session, some attention be devoted to the war between Argentina and Britain over those islands.

"The ceasefire between Great Britain and Argentina has been impossible for the Security Council to order because of the veto cast by the two Anglo-Saxon powers," he said, alluding to Britain and the United States.

Prime Minister Anker Jorgensen of Denmark urged that governments pay attention to public demonstrations against nuclear weapons like the one that attracted an estimated 750,000 people to Central Park in New York on Saturday.

He said there was a worldwide current of anxiety about growing international tension and steady development of "ever more terrible arms." "It manifests itself in the movements for peace and against nuclear war," he went on. "We see it in the big demonstrations and popular meetings, like those that took place recently in Europe and the day before yesterday here in New York."

African leaders review Namibia

DARES SALAAM, June 13 (AP) — The heads of five African countries and the president of the Southwest African People's Organization (SWAPO) held a one-day summit here Monday to discuss a Western proposal for a Southwest African (Namibian) settlement.

A four-hour preliminary session between the leaders was held before the formal summit was opened by Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, chairman of the five "front line" states supporting SWAPO.

SWAPO led by Sam Nujoma, has been waging a guerrilla insurgency for the independence of Southwest Africa from South Africa, which administers the territory.

The summit was called after the Western "contact group" — the United States, Britain, France, Canada and West Germany — last week proposed a compromise solution during talks with SWAPO in Angola.

The fact that a high-level meeting of African leaders was called reflected the critical stage negotiations have reached, observers said. Western diplomats and Tanzanian officials expressed cautious optimism that the disputed territory can achieve independence by early 1983.

Attending the summit are Nyerere, President Samora Machel of Mozambique, Eduardo dos Santos of Angola, Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Prime Minister Robert Mugabe of Zimbabwe, and Nujoma of SWAPO.

age, determination and professionalism of the servicemen and all those involved down there," he said.

The queen's son Prince Andrew, second in line to the British throne, went with the task force as a sub-lieutenant flying Sea King helicopters on the carrier Invincible.

A national mood of euphoria was tempered with relief that the conflict was over. British newspapers ran headlines like "Victory" and "We've won" and The Daily Express framed the face of Mrs. Thatcher in a huge "V" sign on its front page.

A jubilant Mrs. Thatcher, who was greeted with howls of "resign" when she first faced parliament after the shock Argentine seizure of the islands, allowed herself a rare smile when she announced Wednesday night that surrender talks were under way.

Outside her Downing Street residence, she told cheering well-wishers who kept up a chorus of "Rule Britannia" that "Great Britain is great again."

Official sources said the major immediate problem faced by the government was how to handle the large number of prisoners. "The reality is that we do have a major administrative problem on our hands with little food and minimal accommodation," said one source close to Mrs. Thatcher.

Most of the prisoners are likely to be returned to Argentina as quickly as possible, government sources said. But some might be detained until Britain received a firm assurance from the military junta that all fighting had ceased.

Pope arrives for ILO talks

GENEVA, June 13 (R) — Pope John Paul arrived from Rome Tuesday to address the International Labor Organization (ILO) and talk to heads of other world bodies including the Red Cross.

The 62-year-old Pope, making a whirlwind one-day tour of international institutions in Geneva within days of his return from arduous visits to warring Britain and Argentina, looked tired as he stepped from the plane.

He was greeted by federal Swiss President Fritz Honneger, Swiss Catholic leaders and United Nations officials before driving to the U.N.'s European headquarters, the Palais des Nations.

At the ILO meeting Monday, a Soviet bloc worker delegate walked out when a representative of the suspended Polish trade union Solidarity took the floor, a solidarity spokesman said.

Jerzy Milewski, head of a Brussels-based Coordinating Bureau for Solidarity Members Abroad, said the Soviet bloc delegates were joined by representatives from Angola and Mozambique. The delegates first tried to drown out the speech by Bohdan Cywinski, a former vice director of the Solidarity weekly newspaper.

But most other delegates at the closed meeting applauded, allowing him to read his statement to the workers here for the ILO annual conference. Cywinski later told journalists.

The Polish journalist showed a ragged piece of paper signed by interned Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, smuggled out of Poland, giving him the mandate to lead a team of seven union officials living abroad to the ILO conference. In his speech, Cywinski thanked Western trade unions for their support for Solidarity and hit out at martial law imposed in Poland six months ago.

"What are the signatures under the ILO conventions or the Helsinki agreement worth, when in Poland one can be sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment for the continuation of trade union activities, when one can lose one's job because one wears a 'Solidarity' badge on one's overalls?" he asked.

"Half a year of martial law has proven that nothing in the country has changed for the better. The economy is not functioning, poverty is growing," Cywinski, one of the main Catholic advisers to Walesa during the Gdansk negotiations in August 1980, said the union still existed and has continually called for talks with the government but in vain.

"The alternative is growing conflict," he said. "The limits of society's endurance can be broken one day. A year ago, you told us that 'Solidarity' meant hope for the working people of the world," he concluded. "It would be bad for the labor world if the destruction of the values propagated by our union were to become a sign of lack of hope."

The seven Solidarity members here for the ILO conference are registered as delegates of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions (ICFTU) or the World Confederation of Labor (WCL), both based in Brussels.

To implement U.N. decision

ASEAN debates Cambodia

SINGAPORE, June 13 (Agencies) — The Cambodian issue took top priority in two hours of talks here Tuesday among foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and United Nations special representative, Raffeudin Ahmad. ASEAN comprises Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand and the Philippines.

Singapore Foreign Minister Suppiah Dhanabalan said after the meeting that the ASEAN foreign ministers, who opened a three-day conference Monday and went into closed session Tuesday, would have another session with Ahmad Wednesday.

Dhanabalan, who is conference chairman and official spokesman, said the talks centered on what further steps could be taken to implement the world body's declarations and decisions on Cambodia. These include a call for the withdrawal of all foreign forces, referring to Vietnamese troops in Cambodia, and the holding of free elections.

Dhanabalan said they brought themselves up to date on the issue since the U.N. representative remains "in continuous touch" with all the parties concerned, apparently referring to Vietnam.

Asked whether any new initiative was likely to emerge from the talks with Ahmad, Dhanabalan said: "I don't see any need for us to come out with a new initiative just because Vietnam has not responded to the solution that we have outlined in the form of various U.N. resolutions."

He also implicitly acknowledged that there was no new development on the formation of a coalition government of the three anti-Vietnamese factions, although he expressed optimism they will eventually unite.

Spain probes burning of two buses

MALAGA, June 13 (Agencies) — Spanish police were Tuesday investigating claims by a previously unknown group calling themselves "Reconquista Espagnola" that they were responsible for the burning of two Scottish football supporters' buses in the resort of Torremolinos near here Monday.

The buses, which were empty at the time, were both totally destroyed after catching fire. No one was hurt. Police at first were treating the incident as possibly the result of an electrical fault on one of the buses, but they then received a call claiming responsibility for "Reconquista Espagnola."

The group also called daily newspapers Sol and Sur to say they were behind the destruction of the buses, but gave no reasons for the attack. The buses, both British-registered, had been carrying Scottish football fans here for the World Cup finals. They were parked on a vacant block opposite the El Griedo hotel in Torremolinos where the bulk of Scottish support is based.

Police said they were investigating the incident and had not ruled out any possibility, including that of a hoax call. There had been fears that ill-feeling among the Spanish population over the Falkland Islands crisis and Gibraltar could spill over into the World Cup

The minister said he had had no direct communication from Vietnam's Foreign Minister Nguyen Co. Thach, who has reportedly shown interest in visiting Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia and Thailand. But he added "anything is possible."

Dhanabalan said the ASEAN ministers Tuesday approved the reports of various committees as well as the appointment of Chan Kai Yau of Singapore to a two-year term as secretary-general of the Jakarta-based ASEAN secretariat.

He confirmed that Belgian Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans, who at first said he would be unable to come to Singapore, will head the European Economic Community (EEC) delegation for the post-conference talks scheduled for Friday.

Philippines Foreign Minister Carlos Romulo told reporters ASEAN welcomed Thach's trip as a move in the right direction. "It is always good to have dialogue with Vietnam so that we will understand each other," he said.

Officials said the five would reaffirm ASEAN's determination to keep up political, diplomatic and economic pressure on Hanoi, which has an estimated 200,000 troops in Cambodia. The five would maintain their so-called carrot and stick approach to the problem which they view primarily as a struggle between China and the Soviet Union for influence in the region.

The foreign ministers conclude their discussions Wednesday and will issue a joint communiqué and hold a joint press conference. On Thursday they will hold talks with ASEAN's dialogue partners — the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Japan and the EEC.

Police have known the whereabouts of Txomin, 39, since he sought political asylum in France in 1968. Spanish police suspect him of being in charge of operations, funds and weapons for the ETA guerrilla group and of involvement in the assassination of Spanish Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco in 1973.

The sources said the police action came after 200 new French passports, with no names or photos filled in, were found last week in the home of a suspected ETA sympathizer. French police believe the passports were part of a plan to disrupt the World Cup championships in Spain and draw world attention to the ETA campaign for Basque independence.
